CHARGES DISUNITY WASTES BILLIONS

Citizens' Group OK'S By-Pass Plan

Some 50 persons, including members of the Chamber of Commerce traffic committee, last night unanimously endorsed a proposal for a belt line to carry U. S. Route 42 traffic around Mansfield.

The plan, as prepared by County Engineer Walter E. Rusk, calls for a by-pass highway to go east on Cook road to Woodville road, and then over a new highway east and then north to join Stewart road and U. S. Route 42.

With the approval voted last night the proposal goes to the Chamber's board of directors. Members pointed out that the proposal does not take all traffic out of the city, but only trucks and other vehicles when the drivers want to go around the business area.

Walter L. Beckley, Cities Service Oil company manager, said gasoline stations might suffer as a result of the by-pass, but they can go on the outside routes and get the business. He said traffic was "a mess" and the time has come to make plans and recommendations, delayed by the war.

Beckley said motorists can't get places to park downtown, anyway."

Dean Dickerson, C. of C. president, said the idea was not a Chamber proposal. He said if the audience was in favor of the plan then the Chamber's directors would study it.

John B. Conard, committee chairman, said the city has a serious traffic problem and the purpose of the meeting was to "take hold of the problem to see what can be done."

Rusk presented maps showing his traffic ideas, principally the Route 42 belt line. He asserted that too much traffic in a city creates a blight and now was the time to show the federal and state agencies that "we're interested in doing something."

After explaining the belt line, Rusk said U. S. Route 30-S, as he sees it, should remain "right where it is preferably through the center of Central Park."

He said after the group determined what it wanted it would have to get the Chamber of Commerce to ask the state highway department to make an engineering report.

Mayor Roy W. Vaughn offered the suggestion that Route 42 traffic be detoured west to Trimble road. He said he was wholeheartedly in favor of the Cook road development, and a belt line around the city.

Earl T. Garrison, city safety-service director, said the proposal was a good idea and he thought a lot of motorists will still come into town.

The suggestion that U. S. Route 30-N might go across Longview avenue was viewed by Rusk as too expensive.

"I don't think we can get state and federal funds for such an elaborate project," he said.

TRAFFIC SLOWED

When Dickerson said traffic was slow on Sandy Hill because of truck traffic, Rusk asserted the state highway department should be asked to put in a truck lane. He said a truck lane also should be asked for the Bowers hill between Bellville and Mansfield on State Route 13.

Robert Peele, advertising manager of The News-Journal, said the traffic problem has become a vast octopus of related problems. He said downtown parking was part of the problem which needs solving. He said the problem was "so urgent we can't confine ourselves to asking for too little."

Mayor W. R. Morris, of Shelby, agreed, saying he was inclined to believe that in asking for more, "we might get more than expected," from the state.

He said that extending North Broadway in Shelby to State Route 61 is needed to take heavy traffic off downtown streets. He added that improvements are needed on the Shelby-Mansfield road which he called "narrow and crooked."

Mrs. J. E. Thompson, who lives on Lexington avenue, representing women who live in that area, said the homes on Lexington avenue were built when it was a dirt road and houses are only 20 feet back from the road, where numerous heavy trucks run all night, she said belt lines in other cities have not hurt business.

Dr. John L. Stevens said 25 per cent of traffic blocking in the downtown area was due to improper left and right turns by motorists.

Others at the meeting who approved the beltline idea offered were Clarence Connor, R. B. Gardner, George Kyle, and Walter Larimore.

John G. Routzon, Chamber secretary-manager, said the traffic situation will result in blighted areas unless something is done, and called the by-pass plan "most feasible."

Beside the Route 42 by-pass, the map prepared by Rusk showed a by-pass along the northern edge of city to carry Route 30-N traffic along Longview avenue, with additional highway to be built, and improvements to Trimble road, including the building of viaducts over the Erie and Baltimore and Ohio railroad crossings.

Parolee Indicted In Slaying

Jurors Accuse Barnett

First-Degree Bill Returned

MT. GILEAD—John Thomas Barnett, 19, OSR parolee, held here in the fatal shooting of his sister, Mrs. Mary Velma Campbell, 21, near Iberia last Friday, was indicted yesterday on a first-degree murder charge.

Leon McCarty, Morrow county prosecutor, said the verdict was returned four hours after the grand jury had convened. Arraignment will be in a couple of days, McCarty said.

Six witnesses were called. After the indictment Barnett was brought before Common Pleas Judge Leland Rutherford who appointed counsel for the defendant upon learning he did not have an attorney. Clifford H. Calhoun, Mt. Gilead attorney, was appointed to defend Barnett.

The witnesses called were Terry Griffith, Mt. Gilead newspaperman, Sheriff Tom England, Deputy Sheriff John England, Coroner Dr. Frank Sweeney, Max Craven, undertaker, and Cpl. Tom Morgan of the State Highway patrol.

SHOT TWICE

Barnett was surrounded and captured in a wooded area near the scene of the shooting. Mrs. Campbell's body was found on an enclosed porch of her tenant house on the C. H. Maidens farm a mile south of Iberia. A rifle bullet had pierced her arm and chest. She was discovered by her son, Dennis, 3, who summoned a neighbor.

Maidens who reported the tragedy to police, said the child accused his uncle of the shooting.

Prosecutor McCarty said Barnett told authorities he had quarreled with his sister when she threatened to report his intention to break parole.

Barnett had been paroled from the reformatory March 23 into the custody of his brother-in-law whose rifle was used in the murder. Barnett was held on an auto theft charge. He pleaded innocent when arraigned Saturday before Justice of the Peace R. C. McKay in Mt. Gilead.

Funeral services for the victim were held Monday in Mt. Gilead with burial in Iberia cemetery.

Mansfielders Watch Far Into Night

Moon, Clouds Stage Rare Show

By MARGUERITE MILLER

Mansfielders watched last night and early today as the moon and cloud formations presented a rare show.

Unusual clouds helped to make the total eclipse of the moon the first "black eclipse" in more than a century, astronomers said.

Authorities at Hayden Planetarium, New York, said the moon was completely blacked out. The last time a "black eclipse" took place was in 1844, the planetarium said. There have been several full eclipses of the moon since then, the last one in 1945, but none of them was "black."

In Mansfield the heavenly show was intently watched by several amateur astronomers who gathered at the Marvin Pringle home on Cook road.

Donald C. Smith who recorded data on the moon's position during the eclipse, said the moon entered the shadow of the earth at 9:28 p. m. The total eclipse, according to Smith's records, started at 10:28 p. m. and the middle of the show was reached at 11:11 p. m. At 11:54 the moon was completely blacked out as the earth and sun were directly in line. At 1:50 a. m. today the moon was back to normal.

TURNS ROSY PINK

Using Val Isham's home-made telescope, the group saw the moon turn from a brownish-grey hue to a rosy pink as the total eclipse approached.

Harry Delaney, a member of the group, who photographed the phenomena, made a special filter for the camer to cut down the light. Delaney used regular Triple X press film. Other members of the group included Fred Proctor who shares Isham's enthusiasm for astronomy and who helped set up the eclipse-watching equipment. Paul Snyder, Mansfield scoutmaster, brought along his six-inch reflector telescope and spectators were Mrs. Joy A. Herbert, Girl Scout area commission-

$500,000 Burglary Kept Secret

CLEVELAND—(INS)—Charles Richmond, 24, of Cleveland, was held by Cleveland police today in connection with an alleged $500,000 burglary which was never reported.

Detectives stated that the suspected persons said the money had been collected by the victim of the burglary to buy arms for Israel and that no report was made because of international and state department aspects. FBI agents are working with police.

Final Rites Held Today For Kathy

Tot Wears Easter Finery to Grave

ALHAMBRA, CAL. — (UP) — The body of golden-haired Kathy Fiscus was clad in her new white Easter dress today for her funeral.

Services were held at 11 a. m. PST (2 p. m. Mansfield time) for the 3 ½ year old girl who tumbled into an abandoned well in nearby San Marino where a dramatic rescue operation ended Sunday night when her body was recovered.

Services were conducted by the Rev. Bertrand R. Crist of the San Marino Congregational church, which Kathy and her family attended.

H. E. (Whitey) Blickensderfer, unemployed machinist who had to borrow carfare to get to the well where he acted as rescue "foreman," attended the funeral. So did many of the other workmen who participated.

The entire motorcycle squad of the Alhambra police department was assigned to handle the large crowds at the chapel of Turner, Stevens and Turner mortuary.

After the services the body rested in state in order that friends might pay last respects to the little girl whose plight touched the whole nation's sympathy during the 53-hour rescue attempt.

Then a funeral profession of family and close friends was to accompany the body 130 miles down the coast to Chula Vista, Cal., near the Mexican border. Burial was to follow in the family plot of Glen Abbey Memorial park, Chula Vista.

Meanwhile contributions poured into the Kathy Fiscus rescue fund to reward the men, many unemployed, who worked through mud and cave-ins in a vain effort to save the girl.

Postmaster Michael Fanning of Los Angeles said contributions were pouring into his office at the rate of 100 an hour.

Air Chief Blasts Discord

Senate Delays Pact Action

WASHINGTON — (UP) — Air Secretary W. Stuart Symington was revealed today to have told Congress that failure of the armed forces to achieve real unification is costing the nation billions of dollars annually."

He admitted frankly ,that there have been "very few savings" since the unification law was passed in July, 1947. But he said the reason for this was that the "apostles of halfway measures had their way."

"The trouble," he said, "is too little unification."

Symington made his statement at a closed meeting of the Senate Armed Services committee last Thursday, testifying in favor of the administration's bill to strengthen unification. The testimony was made public today.

Army Secretary Kenneth C. Royall told the committee yesterday that unification has failed and the nation now is "worse prepared for war than ever before."

A short time later, however, Defense Secretary Louis Johnson said at a news conference that he feels unification of the three services is "moving along" and that he has received the "finest cooperation" from all branches.

PACT COMES LATER

Meanwhile Majority Leader Lucas (D-Ill.) declared today that the Senate will dispose of its "important" domestic legislation before taking up the North Atlantic pact.

Lucas at the same time indicated that the issue of whether American troops should be used abroad in implementing the security treaty will be a critical point of Senate debate.

He said the issue of implementation with arms and troops must be decided in debate on the floor of the Senate which received the pact from President Truman Tuesday. The Democratic leader, in reply to a question, said the matter of "troops" is "certain to be raised in the Senate."

Lucas and other administration spokesmen in the Senate make it plain there will be "no rush" with the 12-nation treaty—mainly because its ratification hinges upon the arms implementation problem, upon which there is no information to date.

Lucas estimated that it will be a month or a month and a half before the pact passes through the hearing process of the foreign relations committee and reaches the Senate calendar.

'Somebody' Slipped

Permits Traded, No New Ones Since '37

Although Mansfield has four more taverns operating under a D-3 license than is permissable under the 1940 census figures no new licenses have been issued here since 1937, the state liquor department told the News-Journal today.

A D-3 license permits the holder to sell beer, wine and whisky by the drink.

There has been considerable reshuffling of permits issued to Mansfield establishments, but there are actually fewer taverns operating under a D-3 license than in 1934.

In many cases D-3 holders have moved their tavern to a new location. A number of taverns holding D-3 permits have been sold and the new owner has erected a new place of business, but continues to operate on the old license.

These moves must be authorized by the state liquor board.

The overload of D-3 licenses here was brought about because "somebody" failed to pay any attention to the state regulations, the state department said.

In 1934, less than two years after the 18th amendment was repealed, Mansfield had 25 D-3 licenses.

In 1936 one license was transferred to Madison township and in 1937, one license was revoked.

The final license issued here was on Aug. 27, 1937, which gave the city 24 taverns operating on D-3's. Then on Jan. 3, 1944, one license was transferred to Madison township, which left Mansfield with 23, its present total.

The state liquor control board is attempting to regulate more closely the license situation which "has been a problem for 15 years," the department spokesman said.

Regulation 70 went in effect yesterday, which freezes all permits.

"It will probably be replaced by new legislation in 60 to 90 days," the spokesman added.

Rains Bring Cold Spell

Drop Follows Season 'High'

Mansfielders were in for a real spring "ducking" today as showers poured over the city, sending the mercury back to a chilly and damp 55 degrees at noon.

It was a totally different story from yesterday when temperatures reached a new season's high of 72 degrees at 4:30 p. m., and scores of Mansfielders took up the hoe and spade last night to work in their gardens and lawns.

The typical "spring portrait" as weathermen described the showers today, was caused by low pressure systems in the north and west. By tomorrow afternoon, however, a new cold mass from Canada is expected to move into the state to bring a drop in the above-normal temperatures.

Most points yesterday equalled or surpassed the year's high temperature reading, with Columbus, Wilmington and Findlay recording 74's. Lowest reported high for the day was a 65 at Perry, where lake breezes kept temperatures from reaching the 70-degree mar.

Extended forecast for the state was mostly cloudy with scattered showers in the east portion tonight and tomorrow with considerable cloudiness and cooler expected to develop Thursday.

Czechs Jail Relief Head

Three Americans Ousted By Reds

PRAGUE — (UP) — An American woman has been arrested by Czech police for possible "political activities" and three other U. S. citizens have been expelled from the country on unspecified charges, embassy officials revealed today.

Miss Vlasta Adele Vraz of Berwyn, Ill., head of American relief for Czechoslovakia, was arrested in her office at 1 p. m. last Saturday, officials said. An embassy representative who visited her in jail yesterday was told she was held for investigation of alleged political activities.

Officials identified the three ousted Americans as the Rev. Danile Ferryance, a Baptist minister whose home address was unknown, his wife, and the Rev. J. J. Pavelda of Phoenix, Ariz., also a Baptist pastor.

The Ferryances left March 15, informants said, after being given 60 days to get out of Czechoslovakia under laws authorizing the expulsion of foreigners who create economic instability or public disorder or endanger national security.

Embassy officials who visited Miss Vraz said she reported she had not been mistreated.

Blast Rocks Clark Field

MANILA — (INS) — Two hundred thousand pounds of stored bombs exploded today at the U. S. Air Force base at Clark field and killed at least one person.

Several others were injured in the blast.

American army authorities withheld the names of the dead and injured.

They said the cause of the explosion was not known.

The blast started widespread grass fires which raced toward the army's 20th station hospital. The blaze, however, was brought under control a few minutes before hospital authorities would have been forced to evacuate the patients.

Soldiers patrolling Clark field's bomb storage area in a jeep were the first to hear the explosion, and sounded the alarm.

Air force officials at Clark field said that the blast killed a Filipino civilian employe while preliminary reports indicated that two American air force personnel were slightly injured.

Easter In Pantomime

Sunrise Service to Depict Open Tomb

"Now upon the first day of the week, very early in the morning . . ."

That, according to St. Luke, is the hour when Mary Magdalene and Mary the Mother of James came to the empty tomb of Jesus.

It is that hour and theme which members of the Richland County Christian Youth Council and members of the senior class at Senior high school will portray Sunday morning to Mansfield worshippers.

In a service scheduled for 6:30 a. m. at South Park, a group of young people will take the Biblical roles to bring the story of that empty tomb and the Resurrection of Jesus: In a dramatic portrayal, mostly pantomime. These young people will tell the story brought down through the years to Easter worshippers.

Following that portrayal, Thomas Wolford, young ministerial student at Hamma Divinity school, Springfield will bring the Easter message.

The Senior high carolers who staged the city-wide Christmas carol sing the Sunday prior to the winter holiday, will be heard.

Pupils taking part in the pantomime will include: Harry McCune, Douglas Black, John Corcoran, Jean A. Robinson, Virginia Brownfield, Marilyn Bell and Dick Van Voorhis.

Committees named to have charge of all arrangements are: art, Jo Myers, Charles E. Miller, Raymond Stretch; advertising, Robert Perez, Lynn Bell, B. J. Tale of Woe Gets Soldier An Apartment

SPRINGFIELD, MASS. — (AP) — "Any kids?" asked a landlord.

The query was put to a West-over field soldier, desparately seeking an apartment.

"Yes," replied the soldier with a sad expression. "But they're in the cemetery."

The soldier's wife brushed away a tear.

They got the apartment by paying six months' rent in advance.

Then they drove to the cemetery, picked up their three children, who were in on the ruse, and marched into the apartment.

Nine Nazis Convicted

NUERNBERG — (UP) — Nine of Adolf Hitler's policymakers or executives were convicted today of plundering the material resources and cultural treasures of countires overrun by the nazis.

An American tribunal trying 21 nazi diplomats or government officials neared the end of its 800 - page verdict on eight charges of war criminality.

Eighteen Germans had been convicted in the last three days on one or more of the eight charges. Two were found innocent and freed.

The court dismissed defense arguments that the present allied occupation of Germany and allied reparations program also violated the Hague convention.

It said there was a great difference between Germany's "belligerent" occupation of its neighbors and the allied postwar program for rehabilitating Germany and the countries it "devastated and despoiled."

Urge Residents to Adhere to 10-Gallon Garbage Can Law

200 Letters Mailed Out To Patrons

Larger Cans to Mean Price Boost

The city sanitation department has mailed nearly 200 letters advising Mansfielders who are using garbage cans larger than 10-gallons that they must secure the standard size can or be charged for two services.

In cases where no action is taken by the resident garbage collection crews are taking only a part of the garbage from the larger cans.

"The charge for collection is made on the basis of 10-gallons of garbage and when a larger can is used it is almost impossible for collection crews to tell if only 10-gallons of garbage is in the can," Al Strachan, superintendent of the department of sanitation, said.

He denied he gave the crews any order to take only part of the garbage from any can that is larger than 10-gallons, but said they "naturally take it upon themselves."

"If any Mansfielder wishes to use a 20-gallon can, or a 30-gallon can, they can do it Strachen said, but they must pay for two or three services.

"This is nothing new," he said

The letter from Strachan's department said the larger can "tends to make collection difficult on domestic routes"

It continues: "We, therefore, ask that you please comply with the regulations by obtaining a standard 10-gallon can. Failure to do so will necessitate our having to charge for additional service.

When the present garbage collection system was started residents made a $2 deposit for a garbage can and the city would replace a wornout can with a new one.

It has never been resumed and the city has refunded this deposit to persons who have been forced to purchase new cans or have moved from the city, when they notify the department, Strachan said.

Public Will Ask Questions

Expert Talks On Manager Plan

Walter J. Millard of Cincinnati, nationally known municipal consultant, will be the principal speaker at the opening rally of the Council-Manager plan movement at 7:30 p. m., April 19. The meeting will be held at John Simpson Junior High auditorium. It will be free and the public is invited to attend J. C. Gorman and James L Young, temporary co-chairmen of the movement announced today.

At a preliminary session on April 5th, a program of personal contact work was laid out to organize a committee of 100 to conduct the campaign to bring the council-manager issue to the voters for final decision. Efforts are being made to contact all organizations and groups in the city to encourage attendance at the public meeting.

The purpose of Millard's appearance here is primarily to inform the public about the Council-Manager Plan, Gorman and Young said.

Formation of a permanent organization for the movement is also scheduled. A chairman, vice chairman, secretary and treasurer will be elected at the meeting.

Millard was a newspaperman in Dayton when the council-manager plan was proposed for the that city by the late John H. Patterson of the National Cash Register company. Millard became an opponent of the plan because he thought it embodied the dictator principle. When he watched its actual operation, he not only changed his mind, but he began to write about it and speak about it in other communities.

WALTER J. MILLARD

Entering the field of municipal consultation 25 years ago, Millard is widely known as a speaker and is reputedly at his best when answering questions during discussion periods at the conclusion of his talks.

Now a resident of Cincinnati, Millard was one of the original 10 persons that initiated the movement for the Council-Manager plan there. Its success in Cincinnati is said to be largely responsible for the adoption of this form of government by all the cities of the Irish Free State.

Originally, the meeting next Tuesday night had been planned as a public dinner gathering with Mr. Millard's address to follow. The change to John Simpson Junior High auditorium has been made to accommodate a much larger public attendance, Mr. Gorman stated. The meeting will sta at 7:30 o'clock. The dinner has been cancelled.

Smith, who described the watch as the "first venture" by the local astronomers, attributed the excellent view of the celestial show to the "clock-drive" on Isham's telescope. As Smith described it, Isham has employed an electric clock motor on his telescope and geared the clock down to one revolution per 24 hours. Use of the motor on the telescope compensates for the turning of the earth on its axis, thereby keeping the telescope in line with the heavenly object in study.

Best visibility was enjoyed by residents of central and northern sections of the country.

Grapple Card Is Completed For Saturday

Completion of the Stacy Hall-Whity Whittler wrestling card was announced today by Promoter Cleft Kauffman.

Whittler and Hall will battle in a return "grudge" match Saturday night at the Mansfield armory. Whittler has twice beaten Hall here but in their last outing he twisted Hall's hip out of place and the Columbus city cop wants revenge.

TAG TEAM BOUT

For the semi-final, Kauffman is bringing back another tag team special. This time, Wild Bill Zimovich will team with Buzz Jones against George Strickland and Walter Achue. Zimovich appeared in a tag team affair here last Saturday with Don Evans. They lost to Karol Krauser and Frankie Talaber.

Jones lost to ex-world champion Johnny Demchuck on the same card.

The 30-minute preliminary will pit Pancho Valentino against Danny Morris.

Two Mansfield Fighters Win

Two Friendly House amateur boxers continued winning streaks in the VFW show last night in the Galion armory.

Lofton Fuqua copped his eighth straight on a split decision over George Badgley of Toledo, while Billy Eberhardt was given a unanimous vote over Roy McArthy, also of Toledo. It was Eberhardt's third straight and 19th in 24 fights.

A change in the schedule cancelled a bout which was to have the Friendly House's Ulysses Calloway meet Roy Smith of Galion. The F-H battle royal kids did appear, however, and gave their usual crowd-pleasing performance.

Yankee Star To Get More Treatments

BALTIMORE —(UP— Joe DiMaggio went to a doctor today to see if his baseball career can be saved.

There were doubts that it could. But neither the sharp-faced Yankee clipper nor his Johns Hopkins hospital surgeon were willing to give up easily despite the intense pain he was suffering in his right heel since last season.

DiMaggio, looking wan and weary, arrived here shortly after midnight after a plane and train trip from Fort Worth, Tex., where the New York Yankees were on exhibition tour.

TO BEGIN TREATMENTS

He was ordered here for treatment yesterday after an examination by a Dallas physician. Dr. George Bennett, who removed a spur from DiMaggio's heel bone last winter will begin treatments today.

"I don't feel well," DiMaggio said on his arrival. "We had a tough trip up."

When a reporter asked him if he thought his career may be ended, DiMaggio snapped: "Go fly a kite."

"Do you think I would tell you if I think I'm through?" he asked. "All I want now is rest."

With that he limped to a taxi which carried him to a hospital.

Dr. Bennett had been scheduled to take a fast look at DiMag last night, but because bad weather delayed the plane the Yankee clipper went straight to the hospital to get much needed rest before he begins his novacaine and X-ray treatments.

The 34-year-old slugging outfielder who rose from the poverty of a fisherman's family in San Francisco to the rank of baseball's highest-paid player of all time was far from his jaunty at-bat self when he arrived.

DENIES HE'S THROUGH

He was anxious to deny that his baseball career was through, but he knew the dangers of the recurring pain in his heel and there were many with the traveling Yankee team who admitted privately that DiMag may be near the end of the road.

DiMaggio had suffered from a heel spur, a growth of bone on the back of the heel, on his left foot, and he was cured by an operation in 1947. When a similar growth developed on the right heel, he underwent another operation last winter.

But after the first day of spring training, March 1, his heel pained so he could hardly walk. Alarmed Yankee officials ordered him to Baltimore, where Dr. Bennett examined the heel and reported nothing serious.

DiMaggio returned to the St. Petersburg, Fla., training camp the following day with orders simply to take it easy.

Doctors assured him he would be all right.

He entered exhibition games briefly only as a pinch hitter until March 30, when he played in his first game. He played in seven after that, always under orders to leave the field as soon as the heel bothered him. But DiMaggio was desperate to play ball and he doggedly sought action as often as he dared.

HITS ONLY .226

He played in seven games, batting .226 before yesterday. It was in an exhibition at Beaumont, Tex., Saturday that he first realized the lack of improvement. He hurt the heel sliding into third base.

Instead of withdrawing from the lineup, he played again Sunday at Greenville, Tex., to "test" the heel. He lasted only two-and-a-half innings, then was forced to leave the lineup. It was the same story at Dallas Monday. He played only two and a half innings, then was forced to quit.

The apprehensive Yankees sent DiMag to Dr. P. M. Girard of Dallas, an orthopedic specialist, who performed a meticulous four-hour examination. He diagnosed the trouble as a "hot" or irritated condition of the heel and suggested immediate treatment. Dr. Girard talked by long-distance telephone with Dr. Bennett in Baltimore and they decided to fly the home-run hitter here immediately.

DiMaggio called a press conference in Fort Worth to personally make the announcement.

"My heel hurts like hell and I'm going to Baltimore to find out what's wrong," he mumbled gloomily.

Eweil Blackwell, of course, has done nothing more than mild batting practice hurling while recovering from a kidney operation. Johnny Vander Meer currently is suffering from a muscle injury in his thigh after getting away to a good start in the spring drills. The younger pitchers have been wild.

Kenny Raffensberger, a veteran, went eight innings recently against the New York Yankees before being lifted for a pinch hitter but that's the longest stretch done by any Cincinnati hurler.

Howard Fox allowed three runs in six innings yesterday as the Philadelphia Phillies licked the Reds here, 4 to 0. At that, it was about his best job of the spring. He allowed only four hits but walked four and heaved one wild pitch.

The Phils got their last run off Kent Peterson—a lusty home run by Del Ennis.

Soph Pitches No-Hit Tilt; Phillies Defeat Reds, 4-0

FORT WORTH, Tex.—(UP)—The New York Yankees turned today to the brilliant no-hit pitching of young Bob Porterfield to find consolation for the loss of Joe DiMaggio for the season's opening.

Porterfield, 25-year-old righthander, pitched a no-hit, no-run game yesterday against the Fort Worth Cats of the Texas league, 10 to 0. That came on the heels of a one-hitter he pitched against Cincinnati in his last time out, April 4.

With exceptional speed and remarkable control of his curve ball, the sophomore hurler kept Fort Worth helpless. The fact that yesterday's game was called after eight innings to allow the Yanks to catch a train didn't detract from his brilliance.

Porterfield faced only 27 batters and the closest approach to a hit came in the eighth when John Legros of the Cats hit a line drive which Jerry Coleman stabbed at in self-defense and snagged. A Coleman error and two walks accounted for the only three Fort Worth base runners.

★

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—(AP)—Bucky Walters isn't ready to agree with those persons who are picking his Cincinnati Reds to finish last in the National league but he's considerably concerned — about the pitching.

The Reds are only a mashie shot from their home grounds and they're nearing the end of spring training but not a single pitcher yet has gone the full nine-inning route.

Simpson Track Team Opens With Plymouth Outfit

John Simpson junior high will open its track season at 3:45 p. m. tomorrow by playing host to an inexperienced Plymouth high combine.

Plymouth Coach Dick McMullen has had his thinclads working out for a week but is hampered considerably by the lack of equipment. Hurdler Dean Grabach works out by running back and forth over the lone hurdle and a recently-purchased vaulting pole for Larry Schrreck has not yet arrived.

McMullen says Bob Schreck will run the hundred and 220, Bill Trauger will compete in the high and broad jump, Larry Hampton in the 880, and Roger Hampton in the 440. The 880 relay team will be composed of Larry and Bob Schreck, Don Cunningham, and Dean Grabach.

Gerger rolled 194-160-227—581 to take individual single game and series honors and led Geiger's to a two of three victory over Martin Steel. The league-leaders also had the best team scores with an 845 single game and 2468 series.

Adam Karbula was not far behind with 579 on 190-189-200 for Commercial Motor. J. DeYarmon tossed 573 for Schenk's Auto and George Percy had 553 for Motor Cargo. Others included: R. Forsythe, Mansfield Upholstering, 546; J. Yeager, Martin Steel, 543; Pete Hergatt, Schenk's, 539.

Tyger and Ram 9's Meet On Ball Field

The high school baseball game for which Mansfield sport fans have been waiting—Senior high vs. Madison—will be played at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow at Blue Goose field unless rain or some other unforseen circumstance intervenes.

Although the game has no bearing on any league standings or tournament play, at least three circumstances make it an important tilt.

1. It is the first meeting of the cross-town rivals in a regular season game since Sept. 21, 1935, when Senior won a football game from Madison, 38-6.

2. It will be the first game of the season for Senior high and the first under coaching of Mike Byelene. Three new faces will be in the starting lineup—Ken McCally at first base, Walt McKeever at second, and Cy Elsass in right field.

3. Mansfield's Mutt and Jeff will be opposing sides for the first time, Mutt being Ray "Dutch" Bader and Jeff Lou Gregorio. Bader, six-one, and a side-armer will start for Madison while the five-seven Gregorio fires his overhand fast stuff for the Tygers. The two have been teammates for two years with the Legion juniors.

SIX REGULARS

In regards to the Senior high lineup, Bylene has six regulars from last year back. Five are playing their old positions while Charlie Marchant has been shifted from right to left field. Marchant will also be the sub shortstop when Sparkie Watts takes his turn on the pitcher's mound.

The Tyger batting order will be: Marchant, lf; Elsass, rf; Watts, ss; Joe Miller, c; McCally, 1b; Mike Gruber, 3b; McKeever, 2b; Perrine, cf; and Gregorio, p.

Madison dropped its second decision in three starts at North Robinson yesterday in a 10-inning 4-3 thriller. Gene Pritchard, a pony-sized right-hander showed just why North Robinson is Crawford county champions by stopping the Rams with six hits and striking out 15.

Madison got four of its hits in a three-run fifth inning and the other two in the tenth, when it failed to score. The host team tied the count in the bottom of the sixth and won it in the tenth when Althouse led off with a double and rode home on Herbie Lohr's single. Lohr had been the offesnive star all the way a he had an earlier double and stole two bases, including one theft of home.

Bob's Logical Pick to Hurl Opening Game

KNOXVILLE, TENN. — (INS) — Bob Feller appeared to be manager Lou Boudreau's choice to pitch the Cleveland Indians' opening day game next Tuesday, although no announcement has been made.

Lefty Gene Bearden probably will be on the mound at the Indians' first home game next Friday.

There was no doubt, however, about manager Boudreau's pitching assignments for the tribe's exhibition game against the New York giants today in Knoxville, Tenn. Steve Gromek and Bob Lemon get the nod.

GAM ERAINED OUT

The Indians and the Giants were rained out yesterday in Jackson, Miss.

Boudreau plans to alternate his pitchers every four days for the remaining five exhibition games with the Polo Grounders.

Feller is slated for mound duty tomorrow at Hickory, N. C. so he would have four full days of rest before the Tuesday opener. Bearden probably will pitch the Friday game in Cleveland against Detroit since he also will get four days of rest.

The Indians have drawn 200,882 for 30 games and undoubtedly will break the New York Yankees' 250.000 attendance record for spring exhibition games.

Cleveland will draw nearly as many customers for their exhibition tour as the St. Louis Brown drew in a 77-game schedule at home last year. The Indians may net a $100,000 profit for their training season.

Tavern Baseball Team Schedules Opening Practice

The T. and E. Tavern baseball team has set its first practice session for 5:15 p. m. tomorrow at Liberty park, Manager Joe Siwek announced today.

The Taverns expect to enter the county league which is being organized by Mansfield Recreation Director Stan. Kamen.

The Mansfield Hawks and DAV have also expressed interest in the circuit and Kamen plans to hold an organization meeting sometime next week. Any semi-pro team in the county will be eligible.

Meanwhile, Siwek said that all positions on the Tavern team were open and that he would welcome newcomers as well as last year's players to the practice.

Ernie Tinkey, 118 Leppo Lane, is business manager of the club and has asked anyone interested in scheduling games to call him at 5361-3.

Loop Nights For Softball Games Set

Playing nights for Mansfield's softball teams were fixed last night by the softball committee of the Mansfield Athletic commission.

The newly formed Recreation "slow-ball" league will go on Monday nights with the National set for Tuesday, American, Wednesday; Church, Thursday and International, Friday. League competition will open late in May.

A tentative set-up by the softball group has the National loop operating as an all-employes circuit with Farm Tools, Tappan Stove, Ideal Electric, Westinghouse and Mansfield Tire in the fold.

Teams going into the American and International leagues will be set-up by the committee after teams submit their playing rosters by May 2. Eleven teams are now available for these two circuits while others may enter by calling Stan Kamen, recreation director, at 3391-1.

Plans call for the American league to be an "open" circuit with managers able to sign any player in Richland county. However, the rule that a player may play with only one team in recreation department leagues will still be enforced.

Games will begin at 6:15 p. m. this year with the visiting team getting the field for practice from 5:45 to 6. Home team goes on the diamond from 6 until game time.

Kamen announced today that Mansfield softball fields will be ready for practice next week. Managers may call for practice reservations starting Friday at 9 a. m.

Starting next week, all teams must have permits from the recreation department before they can use any of the Mansfield diamonds for practice.

Ripley Signs With Carroll

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Elmer H. Ripley, 57-year-old veteran basketball coach, was appointed yesterday as head cage mentor at John Carroll university.

Ripley, who has served two coaching terms at Georgetown university, will succeed Norbert Rascher.

Rascher's team last season won seven games and lost 10. His contract called for two more years at the Cleveland college.

Besides Georgetown, Ripley has coached at Yale, Columbia and Notre Dame. He was a member of the original Celtic basketball team.

Yanks to Send Rookie to KC

NEW YORK — (AP) — Divinity student Paul Hinrichs, the most talked of rookie in the camp of the New York Yankees, will pitch for Kansas City of the American association this year.

Hinrichs, given a bonus of around $50,000 to sign with the Yankee organization, was brought to camp to help pitch batting practice. The recruit, however, was so impressive that the Yanks seriously considered retaining him.

Manager Casey Stengel decided yesterday to leave Hinrichs with Kansas City, the club that owns his contract. Stengel said he did not want Hinrichs with the Yanks where he might be only the ninth or tenth member of the mound staff.

Joe's 'Hot Heel' May Mean End

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK — (UP) — Babe Ruth's famed stomach ache became insignificant today in comparison with Joe Dimaggio's "hot heel" — an injury which may mean that the big guy is through forever.

The New York Yankees, their pennant hopes hanging in the balance, prayed that the clipper would be back in harness "soon." But they were whistling in the dark, for there was an underlying feeling among baseball men that his achilles heel meant death to Joe's career.

Bill Terry, former star and manager of the Giants, called the shot on Joe's chances this spring.

"I've only heard of one such case in which a ball player was able to come back," Terry insisted while discussing Dimaggio's operation for removal of a heel spur.

And he pointed out that it was just such a condition which ended the amazing career of the great Rogers Hornsby.

"This is a common ailment among ball players, Terry said "Six out of 10 have these spurs. What happens is that a calcium deposit grows on the bone. Even if it is cut off it grows back again And it is such a risky business that most players avoid such an operation, playing on as long as they can ignore the pain.

That would seem to indicate that Joe was in great pain for the past several seasons when he attempted to turn it on in the heat of a contest finally it became so bad that he couldn't go on any longer

Then came the operations, first on one heel and then on the other. Now the second foot which was operated on won't stand the strain.

Joe got away with the first heel operation. But the chances are that he tempted the odds just a bit too far. This is his second trip of the training season back to Johns Hopkins hospital. It is a bad omen.

There will be those who will point out that Joe made it back the first time, and that he always has been a hard luck guy in the spring.

There was his very first season as a Yankee when he was burned badly by a diathermy machine. There were severe charley horses, foot injuries, shoulder trouble and even a spring tonsilectomy. But always he managed to pull through and provide much of the power which made the Yankees famous.

This is a different matter.

Tortured by that heel, Joe is worthless. He can't bat properly and he can't run.

And when he went to camp he thought it was completely healed.

Subsequent training events showed that it wasn't—and maybe never will be right again.

The Yankees are hoping, naturally But it is a real long shot. The odds are all against him and the Yankee clipper very possibly has reached his last port of call in baseball.

DIMAGGIO ENROUTE—Joe DiMaggio, New York Yankees great outfielder, takes a piece of chewing gum from Stewardess Maurine Latta as his plane stopped at Dallas, Tex., yesterday. The baseballer was enroute to Johns Hopkins hospital in Baltimore for examination of a re-injury to his heel which was operated on last year —(AP Wirephoto).

Wesleyan Nine Nips Buckeyes

DELAWARE — (UP) — Ohio Wesleyan, behind the six-hit pitching of sophomore star Nelson Reeves, put down a ninth-inning rally to defeat Ohio State, 7 to 6, here yesterday.

Ohio State came from behind to tie the game at 4-all in the fourth inning, but could not overcome the five costly errors made by shortstop Bob Weygant.

Dick Hauck started for Ohio State and gave way to Al Hasselo in the third Between them they gave up nine hits, with Hasselo taking credit for the loss. The Bucks twice in the ninth and had the trying run on third, but couldn't get it across.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

East, West Clash In UN Over Trials

American, Czech Delegates 'Spar'

FLUSHING, N. Y. — (UP) — The east and west clashed yesterday in the United Nations General assembly over the recent trials of Balkan churchmen.

American delegate Benjamin V. Cohen and Czech delegate Dr. Vladimir Houdek engaged in heated debate over whether the UN should investigate the recent trials of Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty of Hungary and 13 Bulgarian Protestant pastors.

Houdek contended that proposals to place the church trials on the assembly agenda were illegal, and cloaked a western "hysterical" effort to portray Mindszenty as a "fighter for freedom" instead of a "royalist reactionary."

The debate began after Bulgaria had protested the proposed investigation in a note to UN Secretary-General Trygve Lie. Denmark, Iceland, Sweden, and Norway objected to taking up the issue at this time and favored action through the Bulgarian and Hungarian peace treaties.

Poland backed the Czech argument. Polish delegate Jan Drohojowski said it was known that although the west was a "mechanical majority in the UN," the east is "backed by the man on the street in capitalistic countries and the great majority of free peoples of the world."

"Beware of the day when UN fire engines are not going to be prompt enough to prevent the spread of fire," he added. "Then the boys who started the fire might have the seat of their pants burned."

Bulgaria formally protested the investigation.

The Polish delegate said the United States should "stop talking about exporting democracy" since "it hasn't enough for home consumption."

'General' Coxey, Still Going Strong, Will Be 95 Saturday

MASSILLON — (UP) — "General" Jacob S. Coxey, who organized and led the famous "Coxey's Army" on its march to Washington in 1894, will observe his 95th birthday anniversary at his home here next Saturday.

On the following day, Easter Sunday, Coxey and historians will celebrate the 55th anniversary of the start of his memorable march on the nation's capital.

Coxey, still in good health and active, attracted national fame during the great depression of 1893 when he proposed the printing of money to put the unemployed at work on a national road improvement program. To advance his plan, he organized his "army" and on Easter Sunday, 1894, began the march on Washington.

By the time the group reached nearby Canton, 74 men were in line. More and more persons joined the marchers as they made their way toward the U. S. capitol, and by the time the group reached Washington May 1, 1894, the "army" numbered an estimated 4000 men.

Coxey attempted to speak, but a large force of police broke up the gathering. Coxey was fined $5 and sentenced to 20 days in jail for walking on the grass. The "army" disbanded and the cause was lost temporarily.

In 1914 Coxey led a second, and smaller, "army" in automobiles to Washington and spoke from the capitol steps.

A bill embodying Coxey's plan was introduced in Congress in 1929, but it got no further than the hearing room of the subcommittee of the Currency and Banking committee. In 1932 Coxey conferred with President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt on a plan for issuing non-interest bearing bonds.

Using his non-interest bond as a platform, Coxey campaigned fo numerous political offices ranging from municipal posts up to congressional, gubernatorial senatorial, and even to presidential positions. He was candidate for President of the United States in 1932 on the Farmer-Labor ticket.

Rail Official Stresses Safety In Crestline Talk

Asks Pennsy Aids Make It Habit

3 Addresses Made By Regional Chief

By BILL HERRING
(News-Journal State Editor)

CRESTLINE—"Practice safety until it becomes a habit," declared J. P. Newell, regional general manager, at three rallies here yesterday. The uniformed Crestline high school band greeted his 2.30 p. m. arrival at the Pennsylvania railroad station where he gave his first local address

Earlier in the day the Chicago railroad executive had given safety talks in three Indiana towns — Ft Wayne, Columbia City and Arcola Chicago regional and Ft. Wayne divisional officers accompanied Newell here. He returned to Chicago on the 5:10 p. m. train.

"I'm proud of Crestline's integral part in the Pennsylvania system," Newell said. "More than a million dollars has been spent here within the last year by the company in expanding engine house facilities, storage and yard work and the company terms Crestline the outpost for the western region."

"Learn safety rules like your ABC's, he stressed "I'm known as a 'Safety Nut' and want this division to help the western region wrest the annual award the eastern region appears to have a stranglehold on The Ft. Wayne division placed second to Williamsport, Pa , last year and stands a fighting chance of gaining top recognition this year "

Newell cited statistics showing the trend in the safety curve of the company employes. Meager safety rules before 1929 had one carry-over in the present set of safety rules—the one stressing safety as important in the discharge of duty.

In 1931 the western region ranked fourth in the nation's safety ratings but employing inexperienced men during war years dropped the average. The upswing last year and the enviable safety record to date are based on team work, Newell contended.

"Management is interested in for safety', Newell stated "It has appropriated $25 000 in this division for safety benefit this year.

Rev. Payne Cites God's Love for Man

150 Brave Rain To Attend Rites

By EILEEN DEWHURST

The crowning act of God's love was sending His only begotten son to save the world, Rev. A. J. Payne, pastor of the Shiloh Baptist church, told those who attended Holy Week services at the First Lutheran church at noon today.

About 150 persons braved the rain to hear Rev. Payne's sermon on "Love in Four Dimensions." Maj. William J. Jones of the Salvation Army was in charge of liturgy. Members of the choir of Shiloh Baptist church sang "The Old Rugged Cross," and "Lead Me to Calvary."

"The fact that God feels deep love for man is hard to realize, but this love is the very core of Christianity," Rev. Payne said. "Jesus uncovers the love of God for man and allows it to work, he added

Rev Payne discussed the breadth, length, depth, and heighth of God's love as the four dimensions

He said God might have given proof of His love for man in many ways. He could have created a perfect new world, he could have spelled out his love in words of fire across the skies, or he could have changed life in this world into a primrose path of ease and luxury.

Rev. Payne said all these ways would have cost God nothing. Instead he so loved the world that He gave His only son to die for mankind.

The four dimensions of God's love were concentrated in Jesus' death on the cross to save the sinners of the world, Rev. Payne added.

He said there are no worldly standards capable of weighing God's gift of love. This love is just as strong today as it was then, he concluded

Rev. Charles L Shook, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, will preach at tomorrow's services which will be in charge of Rev. E W. Welch, of the East Mansfield UP church

Mansfielders Study Safety

Several Mansfielders are attending the 19th All-Ohio Safety conference in Columbus today. Among the Mansfielders at the sessions is W C. Leonard, of the Ohio Industrial commission.

The sessions, which will continue through tomorrow, are expected to attract 3,000 safety-minded persons.

Elson Dummit, former attorney general of Kentucky, told the group last night industrial accidents would cease if workers took the right mental attitude toward their jobs

Ronald P. Blake, chief safety engineer of the U. S Department of Labor, said large industries are combatting accidents, but there is still room for improvement in the smaller plants.

Now Think of Other Children

WHILE funeral services are being held today for little Kathy Fiscus in San Marino, Calif., it seems noteworthy that the child's parents have asked that sympathizers who planned to send flowers, donate the money, instead, to the Los Angeles Children's hospital, so that other children might be helped.

As thought is given to the tremendous interest aroused over the entire country during the two days and nights when hopes and prayers centered on efforts being made to rescue Kathy from the deep abandoned well into which she had fallen while at play, it appears that the same impulses which caused such great anxiety over the plight of this one child might now be directed toward other children who are helpless victims of misfortune.

There are many crippled children who can be helped by no greater effort than purchase of Easter seals, funds from which are used for this specific purpose.

Then there are boys and girls from broken homes, some of which are neglected and moving toward delinquency while others are in an institution and yearning for a show of interest on the part of someone—which could be you.

It will be hoped that the story of Kathy Fiscus, sorrowful as it was, may direct attention of more people to the needs of other children for safeguards against dangers, which, if not so dramatic in their appeal, are nonethless real.

Limiting Size of Garbage Cans

DIFFICULTY in obtaining standard-size garbage cans, such as were at one time supplied by the city—with deposit required—may account for the trouble the sanitation department is encountering in connection with various-sized cans now in use.

Some of these are of 20-gallon capacity, instead of the 10-gallon limit established by the city, and some patrons of the garbage collection service have received a letter informing them of an additional charge if can exceeds the 10-gallon maximum.

It appears that these letters, however, did not go out to all of those who have larger garbage cans than permitted, and there was some surprise this week when patrons uninformed of the clamp-down found that only a part of the garbage had been taken by the collection truck and the remainder left in the can, with only the explanation that this was "following orders," without reference to an extra charge.

In a Reader's Forum communication which appeared in The News-Journal issue of Saturday, March 26, the writer called attention to the small size-limit placed on garbage cans in Mansfield, as compared with other cities where she had lived, and spoke of cities in which the use of 20-gallon cans was encouraged, so as to avoid overcrowding and resultant attraction of rats and disease-breeding flies.

It may be doubted if the 10-gallon cans meet the reasonable needs of a fair-sized family for a week's disposal of garbage, and a study of this subject by responsible officials would seem to be in order—at least garbage collectors should not be permitted to leave garbage in cans that they call "too big", as it is garbage-removal service that is being provided and if it is found necessary to make a higher charge that should be the procedure.

Another thing mentioned in the communication to which reference is made above, is that many cities provide garbage collection service without charge to users, thus making it general rather than confined to those who are able and willing to pay, while others dispose of their garbage in unlawful and insanitary ways.

Signs of Progress In Turkey

TURKEY, which has been one of the world's backward nations, has turned toward progress and is trying to step out and become more productive agriculturally and industrially.

According to Charles B. Enlow, agricultural attache of the United States embassy at Ankara, a beginning is being made in the recent establishment of large mechanized farms. Virgin soil is being cultivated by the use of tractors, combines, trucks and other machinery.

The labor is performed by native villagers who are rapidly learning the techniques of handling and repairing the machinery. The aim is to increase greatly the production of grain, a marketable crop, which could help to finance future industrial development.

Agricultural advancement in Turkey is intended to produce food for export, and therefore is a help in tackling the problem of feeding the rapidly growing population of the world. Such exports as the project yields probably will be small, but they are particularly significant because the Turks have hitherto belonged in habits as well as in racial origin to the Moslem world, which takes little interest in the prosaic pursuits of export agriculture.

'Heavy Drinking' American Habit

DISCUSSING a new drug which it is hoped may be useful in treating alcoholism, a specialist remarked that North Americans drink more heavily than Europeans, and that therefore European experience with the drug does not apply here.

Americans are often given to pointing out how our part of the world excels others, but this is one point of "superiority" which probably won't be the subject for much bragging.

With uncertainty over postal rates for periodicals, Harry Wade suggests that "this probably is a poor time to borrow $10,000 to launch a success magazine."

According to Pathfinder Magazine: "Some people say that when a green guy with a yellow streak gets the blues he joins the Reds."

A housecleaning of Ohio obsolete laws has been proposed—and the process may eventually drift down to Mansfield.

What Some Other People Are Saying

GEOFFREY HUTCHINSON, chairman of the British Conservative party's local government advisory committee, commenting on the anti-laborite trend of recent elections: "They show an unmistakable change in public feeling which can not be explained."

* * *

ROBERT P. PATTERSON, former secretary of war, commenting on military expenditures: "I'd hate to say how much is going down the drain."

* * *

MAURICE TOBIN, secretary of labor: "A dollar an hour would approach for the first time a realistic minimum (wage) necessary to health, safety and general well-being."

Children's Fund Lagging

By THOMAS L. STOKES

WASHINGTON — Children are the same the world over. Their health and happiness are the concern of people everywhere, regardless of where they happen to have been born and live, within what artificial boundaries on a map, or what is the political or religious persuasion or the race of their parents.

It is so in peace. It is so in war and in the horrible aftermath of war. The last war laid its searing hand heavily on children and left behind the ravages of disease and malnutrition, broken bodies and frightened little minds and frustrated spirits. Yet they are the citizens of the future.

To save the next generation is a task under-taken by one of the finest humanitarian endeavors now going on, the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund, in which our nation, both officially and privately, has played a leading part up to now.

Its work is widely known and commended. But what is not well enough known is that its operations are now seriously handicapped and the entire project is threatened unless Congress acts soon to continue it and to provide ways for its support.

The children's fund is the only operational activity of the U. N. The U. N. accepted this responsibility because of the great need. It was found that it could not be financed sufficiently by private contributions, though many millions were contributed, because it was too gigantic an enterprise. It was recognized as a universal obligation.

Our Congress generously worked out a plan for financing by enacting in April, 1947, a law that provides for matching of government funds to carry on the work, on the basis of $72 from us for $28 from other governments.

The 79th Democratic Congress authorized $40,000,000 and the Republican 80th Congress authorized $60,000,000 more, a total of $100,000,000. of that amount, $75,000,000 has been appropriated.

* * *

Have Failed to Match.

BUT OTHER nations have been slow with matching contributions, which is particularly true of some nations in the European Recovery Program that signed the Atlantic Pact here the other day, so that our funds have not become available in the amount which is necessary to go forward with this work on the scale envisaged and necessary.

No contribution at all has come from Belgium, Holland, Ireland, Portugal, Sweden and Turkey, while the United Kingdom has contributed only $403,000. The matching authorization by Congress expires June 30.

Two things are necessary to continue the fund and the work:

1. An extension of the authorization for matching by other nations.

2. An authorization by Congress to permit contributions from private sources to be accepted for matching purposes.

If the latter were done, some $11,000,000 in private contributions in all parts of the world would immediately become available to release some $27,000,000 of our funds.

Prompt action is necessary as considerable advance planning is required to gather and distribute supplies where needed.

The plan is to offer an amendment to the ECA bill when it is taken up by the House to extend the matching authorization to June 30, 1950, and to permit acceptance of private contributions for matching purposes. This will present the issue directly to Congress.

This is not only a humanitarian project but it is also helpful to us politically in cultivating good will, for the children's fund operates freely in eastern European countries in Russia's orbit behind the Iron Curtain, and with continuous publicity there about the great contribution that the United States is making to this United Nations' venture.

Frankly Speaking

Little Man With Hammer

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON — Excuse me if I don't dance in the streets every time there's news of a great event. A little man who lives in the back of my head always taps me on the skull and says:

"Whoa, Jack, let's wait before you cheer."

I remember how it was in San Francisco in 1945: The flags flying and the diplomats smiling and shaking hands like brothers while they hammered verbs and nouns and commas together in the United Nations Charter.

It was spring, a wonderful time, everybody happy, and all the prophets saying the U. N. would keep peace.

And then I saw the big powers slip into the charter the little sign marked "Exit"—except they called it the veto.

I went off in a corner and sat down, sick with fear, because the little man got busy with his tapping in my skull, telling me:

"Any time one of the big ones wants to get ornery, he can chuck in the veto, and when that happens you can kiss the peace and the U. N. goodbye, my boy."

And sure enough, he called the shot. The Russians dragged in the veto, twisted its tail, and beat the diplomats over the head with it till the U. N. looked like a picnic ground at 5 p. m., on the Fourth of July, when the crowd is gone.

Last week the Atlantic Pact was signed, greatest living testimonial to the failure of U. N.

Fanfare, lights, movie cameras, television, speeches by the diplomats, tons of publicity, and plenty of talk of how this would stop Russia.

* * *

Premature Hurrahs.

AND LATER more hurrahs when the state department said we and France and Britain had finally agreed on how a new German republic should be set up in Western Germany, no matter what kind of government the Russians set up in Eastern Germany.

And both times, on the Pact and the German business, the little man got out his hammer and beat my brains and said:

"Now take it easy before you throw your hat in the air because we'll have to wait to see whether it really turns out as fine as it's supposed to do."

The Atlantic Pact may be a fine and wonderful thing, and it may throw a block on Russia and save the Western world, but first we have to see how it really works and whether Congress votes enough money to help our allies get armed.

In short, I'm trying to say: Just saying it's fine and wonderful isn't enough; making it that way is the important thing, because the world is caught in a hurricane and the sea is running high.

And as far as Germany goes, there may be plenty of trouble ahead, because we and Britain and France have slipped some vetoes into the agreement on Germany.

And sometime if France doesn't like something, wham, in goes the veto. And sometime if we don't like something, wham, in goes the veto.

And now some of the Germans—German socialists taking part in setting up the new government—are sore as hens over some of the rules that we and Britain and France are laying down, the things we're telling the new German republic it can't do before it's even born.

All three whipped Germany and have their troops there, and don't want Germany to get too muscular again. Telling the Germans what they can do is the right of the victor; but the Germans, or some of them, don't seem happy. So that may mean trouble in the future.

So all I'm saying is that every time I hear about something great the diplomats do, I listen for the little man, and he always makes that tapping sound and says:

"It may turn out wonderfully well, but take a cool look before you shoot off firecrackers."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Johnson and Early Longtime Friends

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — One inside reason why dynamic Louis Johnson was anxious to have dynamic Steve Early as his undersecretary of national defense has now leaked out.

Real fact is that Early, FDR's former press relations expert, was not Johnson's first choice. He first tried to persuade Truman to appoint John M. Franklin, head of the United States steamship Lines; but the President turned thumbs down cold, because Franklin was a vigorous Dewey supporter.

Johnson also wanted Truman to take John J. McCloy, president of the world bank, and former assistant secretary of war. However, McCloy also is close to Dewey and the President wanted a Democrat whom he personally trusted.

Actually it was the President himself who suggested Steve Early. Truman happens to be one of the few men in Washington who knows just how much respect Johnson has for Early's judgment.

In fact, if it hadn't been for Early, Johnson might never have been secretary of defense today.

In 1940, FDR not only trampled on Johnson's ambition to be vice president, in favor of Henry Wallace, but he bypassed Johnson and named Henry L. Stimson as secretary of war. Johnson, then assistant secretary of war, was bitterly disappointed and started west, boiling with anger. The White House heard about it, also heard that Johnson was en route to Colorado Springs to meet Wendell Willkie, then preparing his race as G. O. P. nominee for president.

Steve Early immediately had Johnson's plane grounded halfway across the country and got the indignant assistant secretary of war on the telephone. For an hour and ten minutes he pleaded with Johnson on the phone. Early had been one of Louie's best friends, had long tried to make him secretary of war instead of Harry Woodring. There is no question but that Johnson had been led to believe he was definitely to become secretary of war and that he had been given the political doublecross.

Furthermore, he had done a great job of rearming the United States despite isolationist opposition. In the end, however, Early persuaded him to proceed—not to Colorado Springs but to Los Angeles, still a loyal Democrat.

Now the man who guided the then assistant secretary of war will be at his right hand as undersecretary of national defense.

FDR jr. is flying to Paris to meet Chaim Weizmann, president of Israel; will return with him to New York. . .Scott Lucas undoubtedly wanted to eliminate Republican opposition to his reelection when he appointed ex-lieut. Gov. of Illinois Hugh Scott to the interstate commerce commission. Nevertheless, he picked a good man. . .with Cross out of the race, it looks as if ex-congressman Everett Dirksen of Illinois will run against Lucas—a big vote-getter. . .

Air Vs. Navy.

A TABLE-BEATING, word-slinging row that rattled the window panes of the House appropriations committee took place last week over squeezing money out of the Army and Navy. Part of the row was over the old question of more naval vessels or more airplanes.

The uproar started when Chairman Clarence Cannon of Missouri upbraided his subcommittee for giving the armed services half a billion dollars more than President Truman asked for.

"This is the worst bill that had come from a subcommittee this session," thundered Chairman Cannon. "It's terrible and ought to be recommitted.

"At least $750,000,000 of this spending should be cut out of the bill. It's preposterous to give the Navy, all that money so that admirals who still think they're fighting the Spanish-American war can build outdated warships at a time when air power is all-important."

This brought a hot retort from chunky subcommittee member Albert Engel, Republican of Michigan. "I resent the accusation," he stormed, beating the table. "I've always been a strong air-power man and this bill does not discriminate against the air force.

"You say the bill should be cut," continued the Michigan Republican. "Well, I won't take the responsibility for cutting the defense program at a time like this. Furthermore, I'm standing by my subcommittee. If I didn't think it was doing a good job I would resign."

Note — Privately many congressmen agree with representative Cannon that a lot of water can be cut from the armed forces budget. For instance, cagey Speaker Sam Rayburn recently asked the army to take over recreation facilities at Texoma Lake, a flood control project in his district now run by the interior department. Reason: The army can spend plenty of money on recreation while the interior department's budget is pruned to the bone.

Assignment: America

Fabulous Hope Diamond

By INEZ ROBB

NEW YORK — The Hope diamond is on the market again, and with it all the other beautiful and fabulous jewels Evalyn Walsh McLean collected in her lifetime.

Only one thing is certain about the future of these jewels: They will never again belong to anyone who can hold a candle to Evalyn as a personality, a rugged individualist and a warm-hearted friend.

Long before she died, the legend of the Hope diamond and Evalyn's passion for giving large parties already had obscured the kind, generous, open-handed woman beneath the jewels.

Rather, it had obscured her benefactions every place but in Washington, where she lived and where her reputation as a soft touch far out-ran her reputation as the No. 1 hostess of the capital.

True, she loved jewels. And in a fit of depression, she went out and bought a diamond bracelet or a brooch as other women go out and buy a new hat.

But for every dollar she spent on jewels, she spent many more on charities and good works, although this forthright woman would certainly have scorned the latter term. She never was one to let her right hand know how much money her left was giving away.

During the depression, she was literally the angel of Washington. And when the bonus army marched on the capital in those harsh days, it was Evalyn, torn by compassion at so much suffering and anguish, who went to the Salvation Army with the money to feed, cloth and find shelter for these hard-pressed veterans of World War I.

When the first casualties of World War II began to crowd Walter Reed hospital in Washington, Evalyn began her work in the amputation wards and in the wards for the blinded.

Once a week, she provided transportation to bring the blind and amputees able to travel to her home for a dinner and dance. And once a week she took a party, complete with orchestra and refreshments, to those wards in Walter Reed that housed men unable to go to her home.

* * *

Passed Diamond Around.

SUCH PARTIES, at first glance, may seem a frivolous gesture. But they were not judged so by the staff at Walter Reed. At those parties I saw amputees—so sunk in despair the hospital had been able to rouse their interest in nothing—suddenly take a new life when they saw men even more handicapped than themselves dancing, even jitterbugging.

Evalyn took a special interest in the blind. At staggering cost, she brought the best eye men in the nation to her home from time to time to examine blinded soldiers, always hoping that some miracle would restore their sight.

Evalyn wore the Hope diamond day and night. I never saw her without it, and I knew her over a long period of years. Perhaps she took it off when she went to bed, but I can't be sure. But certain it is that she wore it to all the veteran's parties and that the men were fascinated by it.

She would take it off and hand it to the nearest man who wanted a close-up look at it. And then forget it. Hours late, at the end of the party, it might be festooning a hot water bottle at the head of a hospital bed at Walter Reed, or be around the neck of some pretty young girl who had come to Washington to see her hospitalized beau on a ticket sent her by Evalyn.

It was the same way with the 100-carat Star of the East, if she happened to be wearing that bit of blazing ice at the moment.

The legend of her jewels and her parties has obscured Evalyn's profligate kindness, her charity and her compassion.

It was her compassion for Anne Morrow Lindbergh that led Evalyn to offer ransom of $100,000 for return of the kidnapped Lindbergh baby—an offer that led to one of the most bizarre swindles in American history.

And the glittering legend also has obscured the fact that in her autobiography "Father Struck It Rich," Evalyn Walsh McLean produced one of the few authentic volumes of Americana about a vanished age—a book that will furnish source material for students and historians as long as men write the story of our country.

As Cerf Tells It

Elsa Maxwell credits three simple words for making guests at her parties feel welcome and at home. "When they arrive," says Miss Maxwell, "I murmur, 'at last,' and when they depart a protest, 'already?'"

Farmer's Diary

Your Opinion, Please

By CALVIN A. BYERS

IT HAS been proved that conservation pays, now and for the future. Public opinion is against wasting the land that must furnish food for us all and for generations to be born. It is simpler to say, though, than to do, even when a farmer knows what needs doing.

My farm was partially abandoned land, when I took it over eight years ago. We cleared briers and brush out of the bottom field, and planted orchard on the hillside.

With the help of small boys and the little tractor, we have kept the trees growing and have maintained our family table—milk, meat, eggs, garden, truck, some fruit.

The fields need lime—2 to 4 tons per acre; fertilizer from 1 to 4 tons: seeds. Lime costs $4.55 per ton, from our local farm bureau; fertilizer tailor-made to suit the land would cost from $100 per acre up; seed of clover, small grains, etc., isn't free.

Even without his own work and tools, conservation farming demands quite an investment before any returns can be expected. If a man needs to make a farm pond, he can hardly do it without employing bulldozer, ditcher and special tools that are expensive to hire.

I suppose, for the average man, the greatest objection to changing over to the new, conservation methods of agriculture is the initial expense.

The wasting away of the topsoil doesn't all happen at once. War years have made heavy demands upon all farmers. They have robbed the land often without realizing it, by increasing acreage and yield per acre without putting back enough on the land to replace what was taken off.

I doubt whether it would be wise to compel conservation practice. Certainly the government has enough to do without policing every acre, even though soil wasters may do more harm than outlaws.

Why could not private banks make long-term loans to farmers who wish to finance farm improvements? Farmers want to stand on their own feet—want to "be their own boss." They will work harder for themselves than for anybody else.

Cities, to be sure, are used to "zoning", building codes, etc. Will it be necessary to govern the country in the same way, in order to get rid of soil wasters? To become a farmer, ought a man be required to take a civil service examination?

What's YOUR opinion?

Dave Boone Says:

WHAT'S become of the old-fashioned fellow who used to steal money in small amounts? Right on the heels of that $900,000 bank theft came the case of the $50,000 haul at a New York airport.

* * *

I sort of figured that $50,000 might be too small to attract anybody these days. But there's always some fellow who is foolish enough to get into trouble over trifles.

* * *

I can recall when a theft of a few thousand dollars was a sensation. Today you can't get anybody interested in that kind of money. They can get it in box top contests.

* * *

I'll bet a thief who stoops to a $50,000 theft is boycotted by his own organization.

U. S. Making Better A-Bombs

WASHINGTON — (AP) — (UP) — The United States is making better atomic bombs faster than ever before.

This was disclosed with publication of testimony by Chairman David E. Lilienthal of the Atomic Energy commission before a House Appropriations subcommittee.

Lilienthal also told the subcommittee it has been "pretty generally recognized" that the U. S. monoply on the bomb is not a permanent one.

But he declined to answer a direct question regarding how much Russia knows about making the atomic bomb.

Lilienthal also said the prospects are "very bright indeed" for using atomic energy to run a navy ship, fly a plane and for irrigation and industrial purposes.

Now Think of Other Children

WHILE funeral services are being held today for little Kathy Fiscus in San Marino, Calif., it seems noteworthy that the child's parents have asked that sympathizers who planned to send flowers, donate the money, instead, to the Los Angeles Children's hospital, so that other children might be helped.

As thought is given to the tremendous interest aroused over the entire country during the two days and nights when hopes and prayers centered on efforts being made to rescue Kathy from the deep abandoned well into which she had fallen while at play, it appears that the same impulses which caused such great anxiety over the plight of this one child might now be directed toward other children who are helpless victims of misfortune.

There are many crippled children who can be helped by no greater effort than purchase of Easter seals, funds from which are used for this specific purpose.

Then there are boys and girls from broken homes, some of which are neglected and moving toward delinquency while others are in an institution and yearning for a show of interest on the part of someone—which could be you.

It will be hoped that the story of Kathy Fiscus, sorrowful as it was, may direct attention of more people to the needs of other children for safeguards against dangers, which, if not so dramatic in their appeal, are nonetheless real.

Limiting Size of Garbage Cans

DIFFICULTY in obtaining standard-size garbage cans, such as were at one time supplied by the city—with deposit required—may account for the trouble the sanitation department is encountering in connection with various-sized cans now in use.

Some of these are of 20-gallon capacity, instead of the 10-gallon limit established by the city, and some patrons of the garbage collection service have received a letter informing them of an additional charge if can exceeds the 10-gallon maximum.

It appears that these letters, however, did not go out to all of those who have larger garbage cans than permitted, and there was some surprise this week when patrons uninformed of the clamp-down found that only a part of the garbage had been taken by the collection truck and the remainder left in the can, with only the explanation that this was "following orders," without reference to an extra charge.

In a Reader's Forum communication which appeared in The News-Journal issue of Saturday, March 26, the writer called attention to the small size-limit placed on garbage cans in Mansfield, as compared with other cities where she had lived, and spoke of cities in which the use of 20-gallon cans was encouraged, so as to avoid overcrowding and resultant attraction of rats and disease-breeding flies.

It may be doubted if the 10-gallon cans meet the reasonable needs of a fair-sized family for a week's disposal of garbage, and a study of this subject by responsible officials would seem to be in order—at least garbage collectors should not be permitted to leave garbage in cans that they call "too big", as it is garbage-removal service that is being provided and if it is found necessary to make a higher charge that should be the procedure.

Another thing mentioned in the communication to which reference is made above, is that many cities provide garbage collection service without charge to users, thus making it general rather than confined to those who are able and willing to pay, while others dispose of their garbage in unlawful and insanitary ways.

Signs of Progress In Turkey

TURKEY, which has been one of the world's backward nations, has turned toward progress and is trying to step out and become more productive agriculturally and industrially.

According to Charles B. Enlow, agricultural attache of the United States embassy at Ankara, a beginning is being made in the recent establishment of large mechanized farms. Virgin soil is being cultivated by the use of tractors, combines, trucks and other machinery.

The labor is performed by native villagers who are rapidly learning the techniques of handling and repairing the machinery. The aim is to increase greatly the production of grain, a marketable crop, which could help to finance future industrial development.

Agricultural advancement in Turkey is intended to produce food for export, and therefore is a help in tackling the problem of feeding the rapidly growing population of the world. Such exports as the project yields probably will be small, but they are particularly significant because the Turks have hitherto belonged in habits as well as in racial origin to the Moslem world, which takes little interest in the prosaic pursuits of export agriculture.

'Heavy Drinking' American Habit

DISCUSSING a new drug which it is hoped may be useful in treating alcoholism, a specialist remarked that North Americans drink more heavily than Europeans, and that therefore European experience with the drug does not apply here.

Americans are often given to pointing out how our part of the world excels others, but this is one point of "superiority" which probably won't be the subject for much bragging.

With uncertainty over postal rates for periodicals, Harry Wade suggests that "this probably is a poor time to borrow $10,000 to launch a success magazine."

According to Pathfinder Magazine: "Some people say that when a green guy with a yellow streak gets the blues he joins the Reds."

A housecleaning of Ohio obsolete laws has been proposed—and the process may eventually drift down to Mansfield.

What Some Other People Are Saying

GEOFFREY HUTCHINSON, chairman of the British Conservative party's local government advisory committee, commenting on the anti-laborite trend of recent elections: "They show an unmistakable change in public feeling which can not be explained."

* * *

MAURICE TOBIN, secretary of labor: "A dollar an hour would approach for the first time a realistic minimum (wage) necessary to health, safety and general well-being."

Children's Fund Lagging

By THOMAS L. STOKES

WASHINGTON — Children are the same the world over. Their health and happiness are the concern of people everywhere, regardless of where they happen to have been born and live, within what artificial boundaries on a map, or what is the political or religious persuasion or the race of their parents.

It is so in peace. It is so in war and in the horrible aftermath of war. The last war laid its searing hand heavily on children and left behind the ravages of disease and malnutrition, broken bodies and frightened little minds and frustrated spirits. Yet they are the citizens of the future.

To save the next generation is a task under-taken by one of the finest humanitarian endeavors now going on, the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund, in which our nation, both officially and privately, has played a leading part up to now.

Its work is widely known and commended. But what is not well enough known is that its operations are now seriously handicapped and the entire project is threatened unless Congress acts soon to continue it and to provide ways for its support.

The children's fund is the only operational activity of the U. N. The U. N. accepted this responsibility because of the great need. It was found that it could not be financed sufficiently by private contributions, though many millions were contributed, because it was too gigantic an enterprise. It was recognized as a universal obligation.

Our Congress generously worked out a plan for financing by enacting in April, 1947, a law that provides for matching of government funds to carry on the work, on the basis of $72 from us for $28 from other governments.

The 79th Democratic Congress authorized $40,000,000 and the Republican 80th Congress authorized $60,000,000 more, a total of $100,000,000. of that amount, $75,000,000 has been appropriated.

* * *

Have Failed to Match.

BUT OTHER nations have been slow with matching contributions, which is particularly true of some nations in the European Recovery Program that signed the Atlantic Pact here the other day, so that our funds have not become available in the amount which is necessary to go forward with this work on the scale envisaged and necessary.

No contribution at all has come from Belgium, Holland, Ireland, Portugal, Sweden and Turkey, while the United Kingdom has contributed only $403,000. The matching authorization by Congress expires June 30.

Two things are necessary to continue the fund and the work:

1. An extension of the authorization for matching by other nations.

2. An authorization by Congress to permit contributions from private sources to be accepted for matching purposes.

If the latter were done, some $11,000,000 in private contributions in all parts of the world would immediately become available to release some $27,000,000 of our funds.

Prompt action is necessary as considerable advance planning is required to gather and distribute supplies where needed.

The plan is to offer an amendment to the ECA bill when it is taken up by the House to extend the matching authorization to June 30, 1950, and to permit acceptance of private contributions for matching purposes. This will present the issue directly to Congress.

This is not only a humanitarian project but it is also helpful to us politically in cultivating good will, for the children's fund operates freely in eastern European countries in Russia's orbit behind the Iron Curtain, and with continuous publicity there about the great contribution that the United States is making to this United Nations' venture.

Frankly Speaking

Little Man With Hammer

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON — Excuse me if I don't dance in the streets every time there's news of a great event. A little man who lives in the back of my head always taps me on the skull and says:

"Whoa, Jack, let's wait before you cheer."

I remember how it was in San Francisco in 1945. The flags flying and the diplomats smiling and shaking hands like brothers while they hammered verbs and nouns and commas together in the United Nations Charter.

It was spring, a wonderful time, everybody happy, and all the prophets saying the U. N. would keep peace.

And then I saw the big powers slip into the charter the little sign marked "Exit"—except they called it the veto.

I went off in a corner and sat down, sick with fear, because the little man got busy with his tapping in my skull, telling me:

"Any time one of the big ones wants to get ornery, he can chuck in the veto, and when that happens you can kiss the peace and the U. N. goodbye, my boy."

And sure enough, he called the shot. The Russians dragged in the veto, twisted its tail, and beat the diplomats over the head with it till the U. N. looked like a picnic ground at 5 p. m., on the Fourth of July, when the crowd is gone.

Last week the Atlantic Pact was signed, greatest living testimonial to the failure of U. N.

Fanfare, lights, movie cameras, television, speeches by the diplomats, tons of publicity, and plenty of talk of how this would stop Russia.

* * *

Premature Hurrahs.

AND LATER more hurrahs when the state department said we and France and Britain had finally agreed on how a new German republic should be set up in Western Germany, no matter what kind of government the Russians set up in Eastern Germany.

And both times, on the Pact and the German business, the little man got out his hammer and beat my brains and said:

"Now take it easy before you throw your hat in the air because we'll have to wait to see whether it really turns out as fine as it's supposed to do."

The Atlantic Pact may be a fine and wonderful thing, and it may throw a block on Russia and save the Western world, but first we have to see how it really works and whether Congress votes enough money to help our allies get armed.

In short, I'm trying to say: Just saying it's fine and wonderful isn't enough; making it that way is the important thing, because the world is caught in a hurricane and the sea is running high.

And as far as Germany goes, there may be plenty of trouble ahead, because we and Britain and France have slipped some vetoes into the agreement on Germany.

And sometime if France doesn't like something, wham, in goes the veto. And sometime if we don't like something, wham, in goes the veto.

And now some of the Germans—German socialists taking part in setting up the new government—are sore as hens over some of the rules that we and Britain and France are laying down, the things we're telling the new German republic it can't do before it's even born.

All three whipped Germany and have their troops there, and don't want Germany to get too muscular again. Telling the Germans what they can do is the right of the victor; but the Germans, or some of them, don't seem happy. So that may mean trouble in the future.

So all I'm saying is that every time I hear about something great the diplomats do, I listen for the little man, and he always makes that tapping sound and says:

"It may turn out wonderfully well, but take a cool look before you shoot off firecrackers."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Johnson and Early Longtime Friends

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — One inside reason why dynamic Louis Johnson was anxious to have dynamic Steve Early as his undersecretary of national defense has now leaked out.

Real fact is that Early, FDR's former press relations expert, was not Johnson's first choice. He first tried to persuade Truman to appoint John M. Franklin, head of the United States steamship Lines; but the President turned thumbs down cold, because Franklin was a vigorous Dewey supporter.

Johnson also wanted Truman to take John J. McCloy, president of the world bank, and former assistant secretary of war. However, McCloy also is close to Dewey and the President wanted a Democrat whom he personally trusted.

Actually it was the President himself who suggested Steve Early. Truman happens to be one of the few men in Washington who knows just how much respect Johnson has for Early's judgment.

In fact, if it hadn't been for Early, Johnson might never have been secretary of defense today.

In 1940, FDR not only trampled on Johnson's ambition to be vice president, in favor of Henry Wallace, but he bypassed Johnson and named Henry L. Stimson as secretary of war. Johnson, then assistant secretary of war, was bitterly disappointed and started west, boiling with anger. The White House heard about it, also heard that Johnson was en route to Colorado Springs to meet Wendell Willkie, then preparing his race as G. O. P. nominee for president.

Steve Early immediately had Johnson's plane grounded halfway across the country and got the indignant assistant secretary of war on the telephone. For an hour and ten minutes he pleaded with Johnson on the phone. Early had been one of Louie's best friends, had long tried to make him secretary of war instead of Harry Woodring. There is no question but that Johnson had been led to believe he was definitely to become secretary of war and that he had been given the political doublecross.

Furthermore, he had done a great job of rearming the United States despite isolationist opposition. In the end, however, Early persuaded him to proceed—not to Colorado Springs but to Los Angeles, still a loyal Democrat.

Now the man who guided the then assistant secretary of war will be at his right hand as undersecretary of national defense.

FDR jr. is flying to Paris to meet Chaim Weizmann, president of Israel; will return with him to New York. . .Scott Lucas undoubtedly wanted to eliminate Republican opposition to his re-election when he appointed ex-lieut. Gov. of Illinois Hugh Scott to the interstate commerce commission. Nevertheless, he picked a good man. . .with Cross out of the race, it looks as if ex-congressman Everett Dirksen of Illinois will run against Lucas—a big vote-getter. . .

Air Vs. Navy.

A TABLE-BEATING, word-slinging row that rattled the window panes of the House appropriations committee took place last week over squeezing money out of the Army and Navy. Part of the row was over the old question of more naval vessels or more airplanes.

The uproar started when Chairman Clarence Cannon of Missouri upbraided his subcommittee for giving the armed services half a billion dollars more than President Truman asked for.

"This is the worst bill that had come from a subcommittee this session," thundered Chairman Cannon. "It's terrible and ought to be recommitted.

"At least $750,000,000 of this spending should be cut out of the bill. It's preposterous to give the Navy, all that money so that admirals who still think they're fighting the Spanish-American war can build outdated warships at a time when air power is all-important."

This brought a hot retort from chunky subcommittee member Albert Engel, Republican of Michigan. "I resent the accusation," he stormed, beating the table. "I've always been a strong air-power man and this bill does not discriminate against the air force.

"You say the bill should be cut," continued the Michigan Republican. "Well, I won't take the responsibility for cutting the defense program at a time like this. Furthermore, I'm standing by my subcommittee. If I didn't think it was doing a good job I would resign."

Note — Privately many congressmen agree with representative Cannon that a lot of water can be cut from the armed forces budget. For instance, cagey Speaker Sam Rayburn recently asked the army to take over recreation facilities at Texoma Lake, a flood control project in his district now run by the interior department. Reason: The army can spend plenty of money on recreation while the interior department's budget is pruned to the bone.

Fabulous Hope Diamond

By INEZ ROBB

NEW YORK — The Hope diamond is on the market again, and with it all the other beautiful and fabulous jewels Evalyn Walsh McLean collected in her lifetime.

Only one thing is certain about the future of these jewels: They will never again belong to anyone who can hold a candle to Evalyn as a personality, a rugged individualist and a warm-hearted friend.

Long before she died, the legend of the Hope diamond and Evalyn's passion for giving large parties already had obscured the kind, generous, open-handed woman beneath the jewels.

Rather, it had obscured her benefactions every place but in Washington, where she lived and where her reputation as a soft touch far out-ran her reputation as the No. 1 hostess of the capital.

True, she loved jewels. And in a fit of depression, she went out and bought a diamond bracelet or a brooch as other women go out and buy a new hat.

But for every dollar she spent on jewels, she spent many more on charities and good works, although this forthright woman would certainly have scorned the latter term. She never was one to let her right hand know how much money her left was giving away.

During the depression, she was literally the angel of Washington. And when the bonus army marched on the capital in those harsh days, it was Evalyn, torn by compassion at so much suffering and anguish, who went to the Salvation Army with the money to feed, cloth and find shelter for these hard-pressed veterans of World War I.

When the first casualties of World War II began to crowd Walter Reed hospital in Washington, Evalyn began her work in the amputation wards and in the wards for the blinded.

Once a week, she provided transportation to bring the blind and amputees able to travel to her home for a dinner and dance. And once a week she took a party, complete with orchestra and refreshments, to those wards in Walter Reed that housed men unable to go to her home.

* * *

Passed Diamond Around.

SUCH PARTIES, at first glance, may seem a frivolous gesture. But they were not judged so by the staff at Walter Reed. At those parties I saw amputees—so sunk in despair the hospital had been able to rouse their interest in nothing—suddenly take a new life when they saw men even more handicapped than themselves dancing, even jitterbugging.

Evalyn took a special interest in the blind. At staggering cost, she brought the best eye men in the nation to her home from time to time to examine blinded soldiers, always hoping that some miracle would restore their sight.

Evalyn wore the Hope diamond day and night. I never saw her without it, and I knew her over a long period of years. Perhaps she took it off when she went to bed, but I can't be sure. But certain it is that she wore it to all the veteran's parties and that the men were fascinated by it.

She would take it off and hand it to the nearest man who wanted a close-up look at it. And then forget it. Hours late, at the end of the party, it might be festooning a hot water bottle at the head of a hospital bed at Walter Reed, or be around the neck of some pretty young girl who had come to Washington to see her hospitalized beau on a ticket sent her by Evalyn.

It was the same way with the 100-carat Star of the East, if she happened to be wearing that bit of blazing ice at the moment.

The legend of her jewels and her parties has obscured Evalyn's profligate kindness, her charity and her compassion.

It was her compassion for Anne Morrow Lindbergh that led Evalyn to offer ransom of $100,000 for return of the kidnapped Lindbergh baby —an offer that led to one of the most bizarre swindles in American history.

And the glittering legend also has obscured the fact that in her autobiography "Father Struck It Rich," Evalyn Walsh McLean produced one of the few authentic volumes of Americana about a vanished age—a book that will furnish source material for students and historians as long as men write the story of our country.

As Cerf Tells It

Elsa Maxwell credits three simple words for making guests at her parties feel welcome and at home. "When they arrive," says Miss Maxwell, "I murmur, 'at last,' and when they depart a protest, 'already?'"

Farmer's Diary

Your Opinion, Please

By CALVIN A. BYERS

IT HAS been proved that conservation pays, now and for the future. Public opinion is against wasting the land that must furnish food for us all and for generations to be born. It is simpler to say, though, than to do, even when a farmer knows what needs doing.

My farm was partially abandoned land, when I took it over eight years ago. We cleared briers and brush out of the bottom field, and planted orchard on the hillside

With the help of small boys and the little tractor, we have kept the trees growing and have maintained our family table—milk, meat, eggs, garden, truck, some fruit.

The fields need lime—2 to 4 tons per acre; fertilizer from 1 to 4 tons; seeds. Lime costs $4.55 per ton, from our local farm bureau; fertilizer tailor-made to suit the land would cost from $100 per acre up; seed of clover, small grains, etc., isn't free.

Even without his own work and tools, conservation farming demands quite an investment before any returns can be expected. If a man needs to make a farm pond, he can hardly do it without employing bulldozer, ditcher and special tools that are expensive to hire.

I suppose, for the average man, the greatest objection to changing over to the new, conservation methods of agriculture is the initial expense.

The wasting away of the topsoil doesn't all happen at once. War years have made heavy demands upon all farmers. They have robbed the land often without realizing it, by increasing acreage and yield per acre without putting back enough on the land to replace what was taken off.

I doubt whether it would be wise to compel conservation practice. Certainly the government has enough to do without policing every acre, even though soil wasters may do more harm than outlaws.

Why could not private banks make long-term loans to farmers who wish to finance farm improvements? Farmers want to stand on their own feet—want to "be their own boss." They will work harder for themselves than for anybody else.

Cities, to be sure, are used to "zoning", building codes, etc. Will it be necessary to govern the country in the same way, in order to get rid of soil wasters? To become a farmer, ought a man be required to take a civil service examination?

What's YOUR opinion?

WHAT'S become of the old-fashioned fellow who used to steal money in small amounts? Right on the heels of that $900,000 bank theft came the case of the $50,000 haul at a New York airport.

I sort of figured that $50,000 might be too small to attract anybody these days. But there's always some fellow who is foolish enough to get into trouble over trifles.

I can recall when a theft of a few thousand dollars was a sensation. Today you can't get anybody interested in that kind of money. They can get it in box top contests.

I'll bet a thief who stoops to a $50,000 theft is boycotted by his own organization.

U. S. Making Better A-Bombs

WASHINGTON — (UP) — (UP) — The United States is making better atomic bombs faster than ever before.

This was disclosed with publication of testimony by Chairman David E. Lilienthal of the Atomic Energy commission before a House Appropriations subcommittee.

Lilienthal also told the subcommittee it has been "pretty generally recognized" that the U. S. monoply on the bomb is not a permanent one.

But he declined to answer a direct question regarding how much Russia knows about making the atomic bomb.

Lilienthal also said the prospects are "very bright indeed" for using atomic energy to run a navy ship, fly a plane and for irrigation and industrial purposes.

SPRING ARRANGEMENTS SHOWN TO LINNAEUS CLUB

Mrs. Lloyd Barr Entertains Members and One Guest at Sky Club Luncheon.

FIFTEEN MEMBERS of the Linnaeus Garden Club and one guest, Mrs. Clarence Luft, were entertained Tuesday afternoon at the Sky Club with Mrs. Lloyd Barr as hostess. Luncheon was served at long tables which were attractive with yellow daffodils, forsythia and ivy streamers. Also centering the table were Easter egg ladies in big gay hats.

Mrs. Vale Scouten, president, presided for the business session, opening the meeting with the club giving the garden club prayer in unison.

In presenting her topic on "Insects," Mrs. H. M. Spandau urged the members to watch for and destroy the larva of the wireworm and June beetle, now appearing in gardens.

An interesting paper was given by Mrs. Fred Dippman on "Miniature Gardens." Mrs. Henry Paulsen, representing the herb garden committee, advised members to begin planting now at the club's herb garden at the Shawk home, Park avenue west.

Mrs. Virgil Hartman, who recently returned from Detroit, described a spring flower show held at the Horticulture building, Belle Isle.

Flower arrangements were made by several of the club and judged by Mrs. Paulsen. A duck shaped container filled with red geraniums, daffodils and forsythia was made by Mrs. Clyde Smaltz and suggested for a breakfast room decoration. Suitable for an end table decoration was the arrangement made by Mrs. H. H. Clingan, whose floral piece was of white and yellow daisies with grape hyacinths as a focal point in a shallow container.

Mrs. Scouten showed yellow daffodils and elder bush branche with begonia leaves in a circular form in an urn type vase, suitable for a living room.

The next meeting will take place at 7:30 p. m. on April 26 at the home of Mrs. A. G. Earnshaw, 691 Stewart Lane. At that time members of the Agnes Paulsen Garden club will be guests.

Spring Housecleaning Time Cut In Half By New Household Cleaner

Local housewives will find extra leisure this spring with "Wetalene," the new household cleaner which cuts housecleaning time in half.

This is the claim of the Home Research Bureau of Wetalene Laboratories, Inc, Columbus, O., in studying the amount of time absorbed by old-fashioned housecleaning methods Now that "Wetalene" is available locally, the rinse pail becomes a thing of the past. This new household cleaner removes dirt—from painted walls and woodwork, floors, linoleum, porcelain and tile—with one, quick application.

Economical — yes! One tablespoon of cleaning powder to a gallon of warm water is sufficient for most cleaning tasks. And unlike other cleaners, a buffer ingredient in "Wetalene" keeps dirt particles from being absorbed by the cleansing agent. No more need to "strengthen" the solution from time to time.

Upholstered furniture, rugs and carpets respond quicker to Wetalene's gentle action A sponge squeezed dry in the solution can clean upholstery on chairs and davenports in seconds' time. Wiped dry the material looks "just like new." Light sponging for rugs and carpets, or scrubbing with a soft brush for badly soiled rugs, brings back the original pattern and colors to the finest floor coverings.

Home Research Bureau reports that "Wetalene" finds daily use in many other household tasks—washing windows, dishes, laundering, cleaning delicate fabrics—even washing and sterilizing babies' bottles

Locally "Wetalene" is sold through leading food stores. Economically priced for every size home, prices range from 23 cents for 1 lb, 61 cents for 3 lbs, up to $1.45 for 8 lbs.

Drugless Health!

REGARDLESS of how long you have been a sufferer, and how many medicines you have tried before, you can now hope for relief if you try GEO-MINERAL, the wonderful mineral aid. Feel and enjoy the results one week after you start taking it. GEO-MINERAL comes from the earth — Nature's laboratory. Contains NO alcohol, NO preservatives, NO oil. NO harmful drugs, NO dope — is NOT habit forming. Contains ONLY Nature's minerals, the oldest, most reliable remedy for rheumatism, arthritis, kidney and stomach ailments — highly recommended by the medical profession.

FOR THOUSANDS of years ever since Hipocrates was the father of medicine, minerals and other natural medicines were a reliable remedy for most of our common ailments. GEO-MINERAL will enrich your blood, help to make you strong, full of pep, life and energy. If you suffer from nutritional anemia, nervousness, lack of vitality and energy see what GEO-MINERAL will do for you.

Amazing Results

MEDICAL records show 65% of men and women over 35 suffer from nutritional mineral-iron anemia. When you feel nervous, dull, tired, lazy, have dizzy spells, no ambition to work or play, a poor appetite, when your eyes lack that bright spark, and your mind brilliance, when headaches get the best of you, and you feel old before your time, and life seems not worth living, with worry wearing you down—it may be simply lack of minerals in your blood. GEO-MINERAL is then what you need.

RHEUMATISM, arthritis are dreadful diseases. Acid coddition in the blood is often their cause. What could be the remedy? For thousands of years, minerals have been used to relieve the pain and suffering of these ills. People, on the advice of their doctors, go to mineral springs to find cure, or relief. The late President Roosevelt used to go to Warm Springs in Georgie. He was helped or would not have gone there twice a year.

Wonder Minerals

YEAR after year, people rush to mineral springs and spas, to drink and bathe in their miraculous water. We have all heard of the wondrous springs of Lourdes, France, and famous Thronion in ancient Greece where, according to legend, Hercules, the god of eternal strength and youth, drank its waters and bathed to be forever young.

GEO-MINERAL contains minerals you get at the world's best springs. Watch your elimination from your bowels a day or two after using it. The waste, black as the color of your shoes, will start to break away, and you will SEE it! Also examine your urine. You may see impurities — poisonous waste — coming out of your kidneys, relieving you. And then realize the priceless value of GEO-MINERAL.

Read What They Say!

"We wish to state that after selling Geo-Mineral for eight months, this product has broken all sales records in the medicine line in our drug store"—reports Jack Wright, owner of Economy Drug Co., Anderson, S. C. "Users report almost miraculous results helping sufferers with rheumatism, arthritis, weak kidneys, and various stomach ailments. We believe that there exist very few items on the druggists' shelf with the merit of this natural mineral medicine. Of thousands of bottles sold on guarantee basis, there have been very few refunds."

100% Guaranteed!

WE URGE everyone to try GEO-MINERAL. Do not hesitate one moment. Go to your drug store now. Get one bottle. Use it one week. If you are not 100 per cent satisfied, we will refund your money.

REGARDLESS of how long you have been suffering, and how many medicines you have tried before, GEO-MINERAL may be the remedy you need!

TRY it today! It may do wonders for you—and be the best investment for your health. Make you feel, eat, sleep, work and enjoy life better.

Urge Residents to Adhere to 10-Gallon Garbage Can Law

200 Letters Mailed Out To Patrons

Larger Cans to Mean Price Boost

The city sanitation department has mailed nearly 200 letters advising Mansfielders who are using garbage cans larger than 10-gallons that they must secure the standard size can or be charged for two services.

In cases where no action is taken by the resident garbage collection crews are taking only a part of the garbage from the larger cans.

"The charge for collection is made on the basis of 10-gallons of garbage and when a larger can is used it is almost impossible for collection crews to tell if only 10-gallons of garbage is in the can," Al Strachan, superintendent of the department of sanitation, said.

He denied he gave the crews any order to take only part of the garbage from any can that is larger than 10-gallons, but said they "naturally take it upon themselves."

"If any Mansfielder wishes to use a 20-gallon can, or a 30-gallon can, they can do it Strachen said, but they must pay for two or three services.

"This is nothing new," he said

The letter from Strachan's department said the larger can "tends to make collection difficult on domestic routes."

It continues. "We, therefore, ask that you please comply with the regulations by obtaining a standard 10-gallon can Failure to do so will necessitate our having to charge for additional service.

When the present garbage collection system was started residents made a $2 deposit for a garbage can and the city would replace a wornout can with a new one

It has never been resumed and the city has refunded this deposit to persons who have been forced to purchase new cans or have moved from the city, when they notify the department, Strachan said

Public Will Ask Questions

Expert Talks On Manager Plan

Walter J. Millard of Cincinnati, nationally known municipal consultant, will be the principal speaker at the opening rally of the Council-Manager plan movement at 7:30 p. m., April 19. The meeting will be held at John Simpson Junior High auditorium. It will be free and the public is invited to attend J. C. Gorman and James L. Young, temporary co-chairmen of the movement announced today.

At a preliminary session on April 5th, a program of personal contact work was laid out to organize a committee of 100 to conduct the campaign to bring the council-manager issue to the voters for final decision. Efforts are being made to contact all organizations and groups in the city to encourage attendance at the public meeting.

The purpose of Millard's appearance here is primarily to inform the public about the Council-Manager Plan, Gorman and Young said.

Formation of a permanent organization for the movement is also scheduled. A chairman, vice chairman, secretary and treasurer will be elected at the meeting.

Millard was a newspaperman in Dayton when the council-manager plan was proposed for the that city by the late John H. Patterson of the National Cash Register company. Millard became an opponent of the plan because he thought it embodied the dictator principle. When he watched its actual operation, he not only changed his mind, but he began to write about it and speak about it in other communities.

WALTER J. MILLARD

Entering the field of municipal consultation 25 years ago, Millard is widely known as a speaker and is reputedly at his best when answering questions during discussion periods at the conclusion of his talks.

Now a resident of Cincinnati, Millard was one of the original 10 persons that initiated the movement for the Council-Manager plan there. Its success in Cincinnati is said to be largely responsible for the adoption of this form of government by all the cities of the Irish Free State.

Originally, the meeting next Tuesday night had been planned as a public dinner gathering with Mr. Millard's address to follow. The change to John Simpson Junior High auditorium has been made to accommodate a much larger public attendance, Mr. Gorman stated. The meeting will sta at 7:30 o'clock. The dinner has been cancelled.

er and Parma high school student, Grace Walden, niece of Earl Massa of Mansfield

Smith, who described the watch as the "first venture" by the local astronomers, attributed the excellent view of the celestial show to the "clock-drive" on Isham's telescope. As Smith described it, Isham has employed an electric clock motor on his telescope and geared the clock down to one revolution per 24 hours. Use of the motor on the telescope compensates for the turning of the earth on its axis, thereby keeping the telescope in line with the heavenly object in study.

BUC Warns On Benefits

An unemployed person is not eligible for Ohio unemployment compensation if he has worked less than 20 weeks or earned less than $160 in a previously specified period, C. W. Handley, manager of the Ohio Employment office in Mansfield, said today.

The base period used to determine a person's eligibility is the first 12 months of the 15 months preceding the person's unemployment, he added.

Handley, in presenting the Ohio ruling, pointed out the recent decision of the Ohio Board of Review of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation.

The board ruled an Elyria and a Columbus worker were ineligible for compensation although each had earned more than $160, but had not work the stipulated 20 weeks when the money was earned.

Jefferson Didn't Agree With Book

CHARLOTTE, N. C. —(INS)— If a Charlotte handwriting expert is really expert, Thomas Jefferson had some ideas different from those usually credited him today.

J. F. Trazzare said the handwriting in the margin of 1793 copy of Blackstone's commentaries on English law is that of Jefferson.

Page 47 has a footnote, part of which is underlined. It says "That all men are created equal."

Written in hand in the margin is:

"The most foolish opinion ever advanced by man. T. Jefferson."

The White Sands National Monument in New Mexico is an area covered with miles of pure white gypsum and sand dunes.

Deny Talk On Blockade

BERLIN — (INS) — Western government officials yesterday flatly denied reports of indications that the Soviet Union is preparing to lift the 10-month-old Berlin blockade.

The report, published by the London Daily Mail, said that allied officials are studying intelligence documents suggesting the blockade may be lifted soon.

The airlift to the former German capital, which was organized when the Russians stopped all train and road shipments, set a new record Tuesday by flying in 8,246 tons in 922 flights.

The earlier record—8,025 tons in 902 flights—was set on Feb. 26.

Fights Plea For Parole

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — (INS) — Cook County state's attorney John Boyle told the Illinois Parole board yesterday that "society owes no debt to Nathan F. Leopold" for his participation in wartime malaria tests at Joliet penitentiary.

Boyle appeared to oppose any favorable action by the board on the convicted "thrill slayer's" appliaction for leniency.

Leopold, along with Richard Loeb, was convicted of the murder of 14-year-old Bobby Franks in 1924 in Chicago.

He based his plea of clemency on the basis of his participation in the "guinea pig" experiments with a new drug used in curing tropical malaria among American troops in World War II.

5 doctors prove this plan breaks the laxative habit

If you take laxatives regularly—here's how you can stop!

Because 5 New York doctors now have proved you may break the laxative habit. And establish your natural powers of regularity. Eighty-three per cent of the cases tested did it. So can you.

Stop taking whatever you now take. Instead: Every night for one week take 2 Carter's Pills. Second week—one each night. Third week—one every other night. Then—nothing!

Every day: drink eight glasses of water; set a definite time for regularity.

Five New York doctors proved this plan can break the laxative habit.

How can a laxative break the laxative habit? Because Carter's Pills "unblock" the lower digestive tract and from then on let it make use of its own natural powers.

Further—Carter's Pills contain no habit-forming drugs.

Break the laxative habit . . . with Carter's Pills . . . and be regular naturally.

When worry, overeating, overwork make you irregular temporarily—take Carter's Pills temporarily. And never get the laxative habit.

Get Carter's Pills at any drugstore for 33¢ today. You'll be grateful the rest of your life.

JOE GOODMAN—in jail MRS. GOODMAN—paid off JOEY—Kidnaped?

Police Charge 'Kidnaping' a Sympathy Plea

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif.,—(AP) — Police today branded as a father's hoax the kidnaping of a five-year-old boy and said the lad's mother is inclined to agree.

The father, Joe Goodman sr., is in jail on charges of suspicion of grand theft. The theft charge involving a $400 wrist watch is unconnected with the kidnaping story.

Police Chief C. H. Anderson described Goodman's story of the kidnaping and $33,000 ransom payment as "an attempt to gain sympathy so he wouldn't be pressed to pay $15,000 in gambling debts which he admitted owning."

He quoted Mrs. Goodman as saying "it looks like a gambling debt payoff."

She told police she plans to take her son and a daughter to her home in Georgia, but added she isn't comtemplating divorce.

Mrs. Goodman told officers her son was driven off Monday by bogus representatives of a military academy. Shortly afterwards, she said, she received a telephone call ordering her to bring $50,000 to a downtown building to ransom the boy.

Mrs. Goodman withdrew all she had $33,000—from a safety deposit box, she said, met a man and gave him the money.

She was instructed to pick up the child by the Ambassador hotel. This she did. The boy had an envelope with $1,000 in his hand.

"April Showers" are holding the job up though, and possibly the globes will have to stay dirty until tomorrow.

EAC Bill Nearing Approval

Private Aid Plan Advanced

WASHINGTON — (AP) — House and Senate tried today for a quick compromise over the $200,000,000 difference in their foreign aid bills.

Chairman Kee (D-W.Va.) of the House Foreign Affairs committee figured the matter could be settled swiftly. Chairman Connally (D-Tex.) of the Senate Foreign Relations committee said it might take two or three days.

Five members from each committee buckled down to the task. They got the job after the House okayed a $5,380,000,000 bill yesterday by a better than 7-to-1 margin—354 to 48. The Senate passed its own higher-priced bill last Friday by a 10-to-1 edge, 70 to 7.

Both measures point in the same direction—continuation of the European Recovery program for another 15 months, until June 30, 1950. The cash will have to come along later in a separate appropriation bill.

The Economic Cooperation administration, which runs the recovery program, asked for a $5,580,000,000 bill, and that is what the Senate voted: $1,150,000,000 of it to tide ECA over until June 30, $4,280,000,000 for the next year, and contract authority up to $150,000,000.

The House kept the $4,280,000,000 for next year intact, but it denied the contract authority, and it cut $50,000,000 from the fund for the remainder of this fiscal year.

The House tossed in an investment guarantee feature which might mean an extra $272,000,000 in private aid. Under it, the government would grant private business certain guarantees up to that figure for investing in European Recovery projects. The government wouldn't guarantee anybody against ordinary business risks.

An investor would have a guarantee that he could turn into dollars any profits made in foreign currency. And he would have a guarantee against losses caused by confiscation, riot, war or revolution.

Cash Winners Prove People Think More of Others Than Themselves

What do most people who seek to win cash on radio quiz programs say they need money for?

"Illness in their family—that is the number one problem," said Todd Russell, who has questioned thousands of contestants in the last five years.

"And until recently money for better housing ran a very close second."

Russell, a tall, handsome curly-haired Canadian, is currently master of ceremony on "Strike It Rich," a CBS show. Each contestant on the show is given $25 to start and can win up to $800 by betting on his ability to answer a series of five questions successfully.

Contestants are screened in advance on the basis of their actual need—and the nature of the project for which they want cash.

"Some, of course, are phonies and showoffs," said Russell. "But the overwhelming majority are people who have a worthwhile reason. A surprising number don't want anything for themselves. They want to help their neighbors.

"With women it is usually a question of needing money to do something around the house or to aid some member of their family. With men it is more on a personal basis. What they want usually costs more, too. Often they want money to start a business."

Because you "can't always throw sorrow into people's ears," some contestants are chosen each week on the basis of the oddity of their reasons for wanting moolah. Such as the man with the amorous bull.

"He was a New Jersey farmer whose bull kept breaking through wooden fences to make social calls on cows in the next pasture," explained Russell. "And he won what he wanted—enough to buy an electrified fence to keep his bull at home."

Some others: A frustrated city bachelor wanted to journey to Newfoundland and become a hermit. Two husbandless office girls in Washington, D. C., sought transportation money to go to Alaska, where they figured the ratio of men-to-women was more in their favor. Alas—they lost.

A young ex-soldier, living in a Massachusetts town, just thought it would be nice to have enough dough to loaf a while.

"He missed out because he couldn't give the name of the first Indian to welcome the Pilgrims," laughed Russell. "Then it turned out that there was a statue to the Indian—Samoset—in his own town. He passed the statue every day going to work. Probably still does."

A few contestants, after winning enough money to achieve their purpose, risk it by gambling for more.

"This always annoys the audience—it seems to them like cheating." Russell said. "One woman told us she needed $100 to buy a set of false teeth.

"But she didn't stop at $100. She got up to $325.

"Of that she decided to bet $300 on the last question. But she fell on her face and ended up with only $25."

One woman tried to win enough to pay for an operation to stop intermittent attacks of hiccups she had suffered for three years. She failed.

"But a doctor who heard of the case did the operation for free," said Russell. "She was happy—but her hupsband was even more grateful. He said her hiccups were making him a nervous wreck."

Sees Passage Of Christian Science Bill

COLUMBUS — (UP) — Christian Science practitioners probably will be allowed to collect fees for their services in Ohio before the year is over, Senate majority leader Margaret Mahoney, D., Cuyahoga, indicated today.

Miss Mahoney said a bill authorizing the fees had a "good chance" of passing the Senate after its approval by the lower House yesterday 75 to 50. The lower House bitterly debated the bill for almost two hours.

"It was generally been considered that if the bill ever got through the lower House it would be passed by the Senate," the Senate leader declared.

Miss Etha Baird, 78, of 308 West Fifth street, died this morning at the Foulks rest home, following a lingering illness.

Talks On Foundation

D. Osborne Meese, one of the original trustees of the Richland Foundation and Rotarian, addressed the Mansfield Rotary club yesterday upon the founding and functions of the Richland Foundation.

Meese told how the Foundation originally was conceived in 1936 when the estate of Anna Scattergood reverted to the Mansfield Humane society.

It was this money left to the humane society that formed the backbone of the Foundation when it was incorporated in 1945.

Since the Foundation is set up to handle bequests that are not large enough for a bank to handle in a trust fund, Meese said the Foundation is ready and willing to accept any bequests regardless of their size.

He explained this can be done because the smaller funds can be combined with others and administered as a whole.

The Friendly House received $145,000 from the Foundation for its new building, and there is yet another $90,000 in the organization's building fund for future worthwhile civic improvements in Mansfield, Meese stated in telling about many of the projects of the Foundation.

Trash Dumper Caught In Act

Sheriff's deputies "encouraged" a one-man clean-up drive by a Mansfield, R. D. 1 resident yesterday after they saw the man dumping trash at Trimble and Hanna roads.

While driving in the city yesterday, deputies noticed a car bearing the license number of a previous "dumper." Deputies said the number was given them a week ago today when four boxes of trash were dumped on Cook road.

Deputies followed the car to Trimble and Hanna roads where the driver got out and dumped two tree stumps. Officers objected and ordered the fellow to re-load the stumps in the car. Then, they directed him to the Cook road location where the boxes of trash had been dumped and told him to pick up trash there.

Fights Plea For Parole

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — (INS) — Cook County state's attorney John Boyle told the Illinois Parole board yesterday that "society owes no debt to Nathan F. Leopold" for his participation in wartime malaria tests at Joliet penitentiary.

Boyle appeared to oppose any favorable action by the board on the convicted "thrill slayer's" appliaction for leniency.

Leopold, along with Richard Loeb, was convicted of the murder of 14-year-old Bobby Franks in 1924 in Chicago.

He based his plea of clemency on the basis of his participation in the "guinea pig" experiments with a new drug used in curing tropical malaria among American troops in World War II.

5 doctors prove this plan breaks the laxative habit

If you take laxatives regularly—here's how you can stop!

Because 5 New York doctors now have proved you may break the laxative habit. And establish your natural powers of regularity. Eighty-three per cent of the cases tested did it. So can you.

Stop taking whatever you now take. Instead: Every night for one week take 2 Carter's Pills. Second week—one each night. Third week—one every other night. Then—nothing!

Every day: drink eight glasses of water; set a definite time for regularity.

Five New York doctors proved this plan can break the laxative habit.

How can a laxative break the laxative habit? Because Carter's Pills "unblock" the lower digestive tract and from then on let it make use of its own natural powers.

Further—Carter's Pills contain no habit-forming drugs.

Break the laxative habit . . . with Carter's Pills . . . and be regular naturally.

When worry, overeating, overwork make you irregular temporarily—take Carter's Pills temporarily. And never get the laxative habit.

Get Carter's Pills at any drugstore for 35¢ today. You'll be grateful the rest of your life.

JOE GOODMAN—in jail MRS. GOODMAN—paid off JOEY—Kidnaped?

Police Charge 'Kidnaping' a Sympathy Plea

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif.,—(AP) — Police today branded as a father's hoax the kidnaping of a five-year-old boy and said the lad's mother is inclined to agree.

The father, Joe Goodman sr., is in jail on charges of suspicion of grand theft. The theft charge involving a $400 wrist watch is unconnected with the kidnaping story.

Police Chief C. H. Anderson described Goodman's story of the kidnaping and $33,000 ransom payment as "an attempt to gain sympathy so he wouldn't be pressed to pay $15,000 in gambling debts which he admitted owning."

He quoted Mrs. Goodman as saying "it looks like a gambling debt payoff."

She told police she plans to take her son and a daughter to her home in Georgia, but added she isn't comtemplating divorce.

Mrs. Goodman told officers her son was driven off Monday by bogus representatives of a military academy. Shortly afterwards, she said, she received a telephone call ordering her to bring $50,000 to a downtown building to ransom the boy.

Mrs. Goodman withdrew all she had $33,000—from a safety deposit box, she said, met a man and gave him the money.

She was instructed to pick up the child by the Ambassador hotel. This she did. The boy had an envelope with $1,000 in his hand.

LIGHTS CLEANED, TOO—

Spring cleaning even hits the Mansfield street lights. Of the thousands of street lights in Mansfield, 425 of them have glass globes covering the bulbs. These globes get dirty. So the Ohio Public Service company which maintains the city's lighting, started today to clean the globes. "April Showers" are holding the job up though, and possibly the globes will have to stay dirty until tomorrow.

She is very friendly, a little taller and heavier than a wire-haired terrier and is brown and white. She has a curly tail, is short-haired and has white forepaws and white breast. Anyone seeing "Gismo" is urged to get in touch with McCormick by calling 1586-6.

EAC Bill Nearing Approval

Private Aid Plan Advanced

WASHINGTON — (AP) — House and Senate tried today for a quick compromise over the $200,000,000 difference in their foreign aid bills.

Chairman Kee (D-W.Va.) of the House Foreign Affairs committee figured the matter could be settled swiftly. Chairman Connally (D-Tex.) of the Senate Foreign Relations committee said it might take two or three days.

Five members from each committee buckled down to the task. They got the job after the House okayed a $5,380,000,000 bill yesterday by a better than 7-to-1 margin—354 to 48. The Senate passed its own higher-priced bill last Friday by a 10-to-1 edge, 70 to 7.

Both measures point in the same direction—continuation of the European Recovery program for another 15 months, until June 30, 1950. The cash will have to come along later in a separate appropriation bill.

The Economic Cooperation administration, which runs the recovery program, asked for a $5,580,000,000 bill, and that is what the Senate voted: $1,150,000,000 of it to tide ECA over until June 30, $4,280,000,000 for the next year, and contract authority up to $150,000,000.

The House kept the $4,280,000,000 for next year intact, but it denied the contract authority, and it cut $50,000,000 from the fund for the remainder of this fiscal year.

The House tossed in an investment guarantee feature which might mean an extra $272,000,000 in private aid. Under it, the government would grant private business certain guarantees up to that figure for investing in European Recovery projects. The government wouldn't guarantee anybody against ordinary business risks.

An investor would have a guarantee that he could turn into dollars any profits made in foreign currency. And he would have a guarantee against losses caused by confiscation, riot, war or revolution.

Cash Winners Prove People Think More of Others Than Themselves

What do most people who seek to win cash on radio quiz programs say they need money for?

"Illness in their family—that is the number one problem," said Todd Russell, who has questioned thousands of contestants in the last five years.

"And until recently money for better housing ran a very close second."

Russell, a tall, handsome curly-haired Canadian, is currently master of ceremony on "Strike It Rich," a CBS show. Each contestant on the show is given $25 to start and can win up to $800 by betting on his ability to answer a series of five questions successfully.

Contestants are screened in advance on the basis of their actual need—and the nature of the project for which they want cash.

"Some, of course, are phonies and showoffs," said Russell. "But the overwhelming majority are people who have a worthwhile reason. A surprising number don't want anything for themselves. They want to help their neighbors.

"With women it is usually a question of needing money to do something around the house or to aid some member of their family. With men it is more on a personal basis. What they want usually costs more, too. Often they want money to start a business."

Because you "can't always throw sorrow into people's ears," some contestants are chosen each week on the basis of the oddity of their reasons for wanting moolah. Such as the man with the amorous bull.

"He was a New Jersey farmer whose bull kept breaking through wooden fences to make social calls on cows in the next pasture," explained Russell. "And he won what he wanted—enough to buy an electrified fence to keep his bull at home."

Some others: A frustrated city bachelor wanted to journey to Newfoundland and become a hermit. Two husbandless office girls in Washington, D. C., sought transportation money to go to Alaska, where they figured the ratio of men-to-women was more in their favor. Alas—they lost.

A young ex-soldier, living in a Massachusetts town, just thought it would be nice to have enough dough to loaf a while.

"He missed out because he couldn't give the name of the first Indian to welcome the Pilgrims," laughed Russell. "Then it turned out that there was a statue to the Indian—Samoset—in his own town. He passed the statue every day going to work. Probably still does."

A few contestants, after winning enough money to achieve their purpose, risk it by gambling for more.

"This always annoys the audience—it seems to them like cheating," Russell said. "One woman told us she needed $100 to buy a set of false teeth.

"But she didn't stop at $100. She got up to $325.

"Of that she decided to bet $300 on the last question. But she fell on her face and ended up with only $25."

One woman tried to win enough to pay for an operation to stop intermittent attacks of hiccups she had suffered for three years. She failed.

"But a doctor who heard of the case did the operation for free," said Russell. "She was happy—but her hupsband was even more grateful. He said her hiccups were making him a nervous wreck."

Sees Passage Of Christian Science Bill

COLUMBUS — (UP) — Christian Science practitioners probably will be allowed to collect fees for their services in Ohio before the year is over, Senate majority leader Margaret Mahoney, D., Cuyahoga, indicated today.

Miss Mahoney said a bill authorizing the fees had a "good chance" of passing the Senate after its approval by the lower House yesterday 75 to 50. The lower House bitterly debated the bill for almost two hours.

"It was generally been considered that if the bill ever got through the lower House it would be passed by the Senate," the Senate leader declared.

Talks On Foundation

D. Osborne Meese, one of the original trustees of the Richland Foundation and Rotarian, addressed the Mansfield Rotary club yesterday upon the founding and functions of the Richland Foundation.

Meese told how the Foundation originally was conceived in 1936 when the estate of Anna Scattergood reverted to the Mansfield Humane society.

It was this money left to the humane society that formed the backbone of the Foundation when it was incorporated in 1945.

Since the Foundation is set up to handle bequests that are not large enough for a bank to handle in a trust fund, Meese said the Foundation is ready and willing to accept any bequests regardless of their size.

He explained this can be done because the smaller funds can be combined with others and administered as a whole.

The Friendly House received $145,000 from the Foundation for its new building, and there is yet another $90,000 in the organization's building fund for future worthwhile civic improvements in Mansfield, Meese stated in telling about many of the projects of the Foundation.

Trash Dumper Caught In Act

Sheriff's deputies "encouraged" a one-man clean-up drive by a Mansfield, R. D. 1 resident yesterday after they saw the man dumping trash at Trimble and Hanna roads.

While driving in the city yesterday, deputies noticed a car bearing the license number of a previous "dumper." Deputies said the number was given them a week ago today when four boxes of trash were dumped on Cook road.

Deputies followed the car to Trimble and Hanna roads where the driver got out and dumped two tree stumps. Officers objected and ordered the fellow to re-load the stumps in the car. Then, they directed him to the Cook road location where the boxes of trash had been dumped and told him to pick up trash there.

'Results Not Impressive'

Blow Dealt to Guayule Rubber Plans

By BRUCE BOISSAT

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A House committee has sounded what may be the death knell of a war-born program to give the United States its own supply of natural rubber.

Had this effort been carried to successful conclusion, it would have been of vast importance to the rubber industry.

The program was aimed at developing the guayule plant as a source of rubber. Proponents of the experiment said they still believe it has promise, but the House decided otherwise.

The House Appropriations committee said in its report on funds for the Agriculture department:

"The committee is convinced that the effort to produce suitable quantities of rubber from guayule is futile.

"More that $50,000,000 has been spent on this project since its inception during the recent world war.

"Large acreages planted to guayule with great promise of production of natural rubber on our own soil eventually were given up as hoepless and the enormous expenditure, now charged off as part of the cost of the war, must be looked upon as a pure loss.

"The results of subsequent investigations and experimentations have not been impressive."

The committee specifically forbade expenditures of any further money on the experiment, and the House backed up the decision. It remains to be seen whether the Senate will try to keep the project alive.

The guayule venture began after Japan cut off America's rubber supply sources in the Dutch East Indies and Malay states.

Although the synthetic industry was shoved into high gear, it was necessary to combine some natural rubber with the synthetics product to get satisfactory results.

Fortunately for the nation's war effort, it had a considerable stockpile of imported natural rubber when hostilities began. This was still not exhausted at the end of the war.

Richland County Farmers Expecting Bumper Wheat Crop

Mild 1949 Winter Seen as Boon

Acreage Above Pre-War Years

By, WINTHROP RUGGLES

Richland county farmers are looking forward to another bumper wheat crop this summer, while at the same time considering the government's proposed cut-back of wheat acreage next fall.

This year's crop, according to all advance indications, will be the best in years; at least that's what farmers agreed while congregating at the county's elevators and two agricultural agencies.

Even though the wet fall kept soybeans from being harvested in time to plant wheat on much of that ground, many farmers report they have more acreage in wheat than in any average pre-war year.

The mild winter, which was a hazard to peach growers, has been a boon to wheat raisers of Richland county.

Stalks are stronger and growth has been accelerated by the early warm weather.

But, with the reinstatement of the government's wheat acreage allocation program, farmers should not have as many acres of wheat to look forward to next spring.

The AAA's wheat allocation program is not moving as rapidly as was hoped though, Guy L. Taylor, county AAA chairman, reported.

With all of the past week's good weather, township chairmen have not had an opportunity to see all of the farmers in their region to collect the information needed to set up the acreage allocations. "They've been getting their oats in, and I don't blame them," Taylor said.

Taylor requested that farmers get in touch with their township committeeman and give him their acreages of grain crops for the past years.

Information needed by the committeemen, Taylor said, was:

1. Number of acres of all grain crops harvested in 1947 and 1948.
2. Number of acres now planted to wheat.

The quicker this data is compiled, the sooner we can tell the individual farmer how much wheat he will be asked to plant this fall.

Finds Corn Too Wet

The corn in cribs throughout Richland county is in deplorable condition, Guy L Taylor, Richland county AAA chairman, warned area farmers again today.

Taylor has been checking the moisture content of stored corn that is under obligation to the government through federal loans.

His findings show moisture is running as high as 32 per cent in the ears, and if it is not dried out immediately, the corn will rot as soon as warm weather hits this area.

Corn in the center of the cribs is already spoiled in many instances, and spreading rapidly to the rest of the stored crop, he said.

"Get the corn out of the cribs and into small piles!" Taylor declared, "before there is nothing left but a deficit in the corn crib."

The AAA chairman explained the high moisture content was due to the unusually mild winter, and the large amount of rainfall during the harvesting season last fall.

Frown On DDT As Fly Spray

DDT has lost its backing as a dairy, cow fly spray by the Ohio State Agriculture Extension Service.

C. N. McGrew, Richland county extension agent, today warned against the use of the popular insecticide for fly control on dairy cattle.

No authentic case of an illness can be traced to DDT, but the federal food and drug department has nevertheless stated the continued presence of DDT in dairy products could lead to the impairment of a person's health, McGrew said.

T. H. Parks, entomologist of the Ohio State Extension Service, said "DDT will no longer be recommended by the extension service for application to dairy cows."

Methoxychlor, a new insecticide, has been recommended by the extension department and McGrew for fly control on cows.

Use of the new insecticide has proven highly favorable, McGrew said, and should be used at the rate of eight pounds of 50 per cent wettable powder (50 per cent methoxychlor) to 100 gallons of water, or five level tablespoons to the gallon.

This emulsion should be applied at the rate of one and a half to two quarts per cow, and will last for three to five weeks.

DDT can still be used on beef cattle, except near a time when they will be slaughtered, and is still recommended for walls and ceiling of all buildings. Use of DDT is advised here because it is cheaper than methoxychlor.

Another insecticide advised against by McGrew for use on dairy cows was benzene hexachloride, which has shown a definite tendency to taint milk with its musty odor. The benzene compound was also advised against for poultry, sows that will farrow within 20 days, or any livestock that will be butchered within 30 days.

Ordinary precautions were stressed by McGrew in the use of any insecticide, including not having cattle in the barn when spraying (and don't use the same strength spray on cattle as on buildings, as the wall spray is four to five times stronger), don't spray "hot" electric wires (turn the master switch off and don't turn it on until the wires are dry), and always use non-oil base sprays on livestock.

SOD-BUSTER GIVEN TRIAL—The latest in soil preparation equipment was demonstrated at Malabar farm, near Lucas, Sunday. Malabar-owner Louis Bromfield is shown in the top photo following a Seaman Pulvi-Mixer, a machine that in one operation takes the place of the plow and several other soil fitting machines. The machine cuts a five-foot swath through a field and works the soil up to a depth of 15 inches. In the lower photo Bromfield has taken a handful of dirt from the path of the Pulvi-Mixer and is discussing the machine's possibilities with Robert Huge, general manager of the farm The dog in the picture if "Rex" one of the ever-present Malabar Boxers. Bromfield's farm now has one of the smaller ground-breakers operating. It is of the three-foot size and works from a tractor's power take-off. The machine in the photograph has its own 90-horse-power power unit, and was brought to the farm for demonstration by the Seaman Motors, Inc., of Milwaukee, Wis., which manufactures the unit

Ohio Short On Orchards, Uses More Apples Than It Grows

Carl Ellenwood, associate horticulturist of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station at Wooster, says there is a need for more orchards in Ohio He expressed his views while in Mansfield early this week.

Taking apple orchards as a prime example, Ellenwood said Ohio uses, directly through consumers and in processing plants, from six to seven millions of bushels of apples per year, but Ohio orchardists have only been producing around four million bushels.

He said apple orchards are on the decline in Ohio, backing up his statement with figures compiled by the experiment station.

These figures showed that there are more apple trees in Ohio that are more than 30 years old than there are trees under ten years old.

Since apple trees have passed their most productive era by the time they are 30, and there are few new trees coming on, he predicted a shortage of apples in the next few years.

Other varieties of fruit are not in as bad a state as apples, the horticulturist said, but no one should "do bad" if he were to enter the orchard business at this time.

In considering the raising of fruit for a livelihood, he suggested potential orchardists diversify their growing program.

He explained that it is very seldom all varities of fruit are hit hard by the weather, but it is easy enough for an orchardist specializing in peaches, apples, or any other one type of fruit to be wiped out by frosts or other bad weather.

A fertile soil is needed for trees just as in any other farm crop, he said, but of particular importance is that the land be well-drained.

Farmers having fruit trees, regardless of the number, were invited by Ellenwood to write to the experiment station for proper spraying instructions.

This service is free and can be had by writing Spray Service, Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, Wooster, Ohio.

Complete date on the best type of tree for the individual farm, the best for family use or commerical purposes, or any other information desired by a farmer in regard to orchards is available at the experiment station, he added.

The station is ready to give all the help it can to a person beginning in any farming endeavor, Ellenwood said.

TIP FOR YOUR GARDEN

To conserve fertility and reduce insect injury the vegetable garden should be rotated from place to place every two or three years if yard space makes this possible.
